Amherstburg public men in the 1850's and earlier made strenuous efforts to have a railroad from the east make Amherstburg its western terminus. It was realized that a town to continue to have commercial importance in the dawning Railroad Age must have dependable year round transportation service, something which the Great Lakes steamers could not furnish. One of these ventures was called the Niagara and Detroit River Company. It obtained a charter in 1850 and the good will of many communities along the north shore of Lake Erie, but had the powerful opposition in the proponents of other lines further inland, railroads later built under the names of the Great Western and the Grand Trunk. When this first charter expired without much actual spade work being done, another line was proposed through road to be known as the Great Southern. By this time the Canadian Legislature was becoming wary of railroad enterprises which looked to Government or municipalities for finances, so the promoters found the organization difficult to complete. Quarrels broke out among the stock holders, and rival Board of Directors were elected. Resulting law suits and Legislative hearings slowed everything proposed, and in the end no railroad was built until the Canada Southern was built some twenty years later, and constructed substantially on the same route and grades as had been originally proposed. But even then Amherstburg was not served directly for the railroad's terminus on the Detroit River was one mile north of Amherstburg at Gordon Station from whence the railroad cars were ferried over to Michigan. It was not until 1892 that an extension from Gordon Station, liberally bonused by the town, was built into Amherstburg. By that time the Canada Southern was owned by the Michigan Central and that line had made a more direct route to Detroit by a cutoff at Essex to Windsor, so Amherstburg found herself after forty years of rosy dreams the terminus of a branch line!

The Port of Amherstburg, a Century Ago and Now

A traveller approaching Amherstburg a century ago would in all probability first see the town from the water. In 1849 no railroad from the populous east had penetrated as far as the Detroit river frontier. The highways, it is true, were traversed by stage coach lines, but the roads were seldom good. It was only in winter, when navigation on the Lakes ceased, that the experienced traveller turned to the stage coach for transportation.

In the century that has passed there have been many changes, but the coming and the going of the seasons was the same as now, and so, from about the first day of Spring to December 7th when the Lakes and channels were free from ice the traveller had available the swift, luxurious steam craft.

In 1848 it is recorded that there were 950 arrivals and 950 departures from the Port of Amherstburg, a figure more than double that of last year when there were 350 clearances granted foreign or American ships and about 50 additional clearances to ships of Canadian registry engaged coast-wise. Of course, present day tonnages and cargo values would surpass those of a hundred years ago.

In 1849 there were 924 vessels of all types on the Great Lakes. The most numerous class was that of schooners and they totalled 548. Along every beach almost, the sloops and scows totalling 128, followed by 93 brigs and 15 barks. It was remarked that brigs and barks were passing out and full-rigged ships were already a memory. Coming to steam craft there were 95 side-wheel vessels, commonly termed "steamers", and 45 propellers. The propellers were then a comparatively new class of vessels but soon surpassed in number the older model. Today there are only a few side-wheelers but they are giants in their class and are particularly suited to the type of service they render.

Amherstburg has always been very much a sailor's town. Hundreds of Amherstburg boys found their careers on the Lakes, and still continue to do so. Almost every deck on the Great Lakes has been trod by an Amherstburg sailor. Every great storm has left its sad echo in an Amherstburg home. The present day sailor passing Amherstburg would see many of the buildings his great-grandfather saw a century ago. The Bois Blanc Island Lighthouse even then shone its welcome to the ship leaving Lake Erie and entering the Detroit. Upon the shore opposite stands the oldest house on the Great Lakes, the Mathew Elliott homestead built in 1784, nearer the town stands Belle Vue, completed in 1820, originally the home of Commissary Reynolds and now a Veteran's home. The spires of three of the churches peeping through the trees were land marks a century ago. The long docks ladened with cord wood in 1849 have given way to coal yards, busy tugs and ferries, and excursion steamers have replaced the towering masts of the schooners. Further along the bastions of old Fort Malden may still be seen, no longer a Military Post on the western frontier but a National Historic Park with two Museums one building housing an ever-expanding Great Lakes Collection.

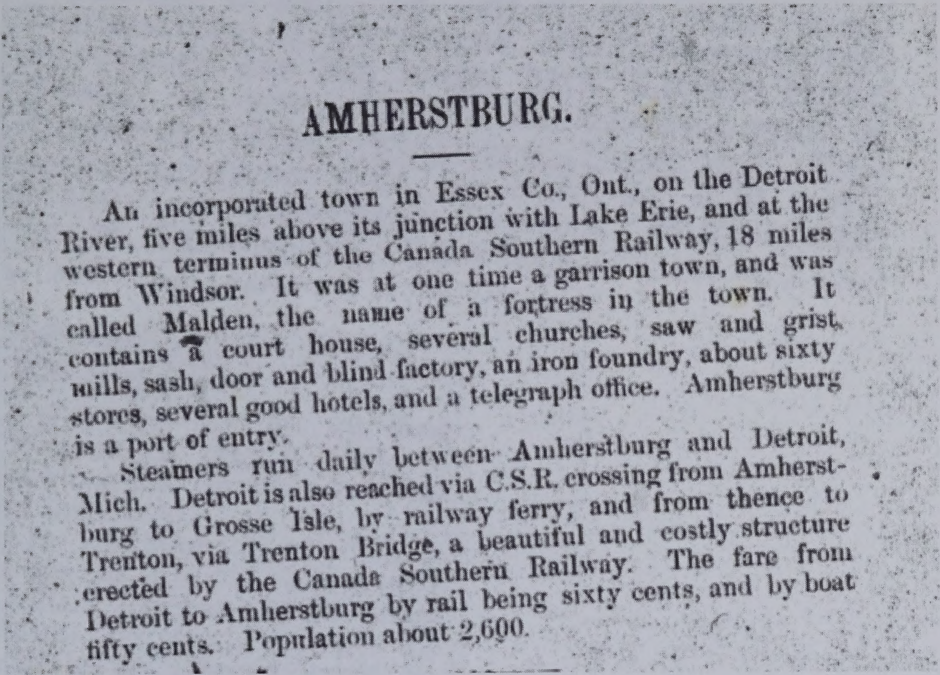
The local steamers were much smaller but equally swift, operating on schedules not much different from the present. We have mention of the following river boats then in service, the CANADA, GEM, VALLEY CITY, SWIFT, DOVE and PEARL. To furnish the fuel requirements of the numerous steam vessels a number of wood docks were established on the Amherstburg waterfront. During the winter season the river bank from Park Street North to the Queen's dock at the old Commissary (the present Captain Walter Callam residence) would be gradually covered with huge stacks of four foot cord wood. During the season of navigation the piles would almost vanish. At one time choice hickory, the preferred wood, sold for $2.50 per cord. In the early 1880's coal began to be used for fuel and J. G. Mullen came from Cleveland to manage the first coal dock. Most of the existing boats had their grates changed while all the new boats came out as coal-burners. The last coal-loading chutes were removed from the Amherstburg waterfront in 1956.

A feature of the 1870's and 1880's was the huge rafts of timbers brought down from the pine forests of the north. Some of them were a quarter-mile in length and they were guided by a powerful tug. The local lumber exported at this period was square timber of oak and walnut shipped by schooner.

For more than fifty years detachments of British regiments served at Fort Malden. In the War of 1812, and again in the Canadian Rebellion of 1837, there had been periods of excitement when battles were fought nearby, but after years of peace the determination was made in 1851 to withdraw the Regulars from Fort Malden. In their place, as a measure of economy, Fort Malden was to be guarded by details of men chosen from a Reserve Force known as the "Enrolled Pensioners." The enrolled pensioner's scheme comprised veterans of the British and East Indian Armies who had served out their original term of enlistment. At that time enlistment was for lengthy periods, twenty-one years in the Foot regiments, and only eighteen if service was in the cavalry. Apparently, the three years reduction was a concession to the wear and tear induced by "slap happy" saddles and the animals beneath. Accordingly, in 1851 the Regulars withdrew from Fort Malden, and the first of two large groups of Pensioners and families came to Amherstburg. A second group arrived in 1852. From their ranks a token force of only eight men were chosen for monthly terms to guard the buildings of Fort Malden.

When the Pensioners arrived in Amherstburg preparations for their reception were not yet completed, so for most of the first summer the old soldiers and their families camped in tents on the parade ground of the Fort. Meanwhile, streets and lots were being laid out on other portions of the Military Commons, and by 1852 some eighty-eight houses were built and occupied on that part of Amherstburg north of Richmond Street, and east of Sandwich Street. In 1854 when the Crimean War broke out a number of these Pensioners volunteered for further service, and in a number of instances were accompanied by teenage sons. In after years a nurse, Bridget Horan, who had served with Florence Nightingale in the Crimea, was a resident of Amherstburg. The coming of the Pensioners made an imprint on the town of Amherstburg which still remains in the family names of present-day Amherstburg residents.

By the 1850's Amherstburg was well-established as a shipping centre for the surrounding area. Flour, pork, tobacco, pearl ash, and walnut timbers found markets down the St. Lawrence, the eastern States, and overseas, while imports included such items as fabrics, hardware items, pottery, and settler effects. All heavy freight was shipped by water, but two lines of stage connected Amherstburg with the east by which passengers and mail were moved. At this period steam vessels, both side-wheelers and propellers, were rapidly replacing sail. Amherstburg was proud of a propeller which launched at Amherstburg in 1849, the EARL CATHCART. It plied between Amherstburg and Montreal making about three trips each month. Another vessel with its home port at Amherstburg was the PLOUGHBOY. It had been built at Chatham, but for much of its career was owned and operated by Amherstburg merchants. Until railroad reached Windsor, the PLOUGHBOY usually ran a route on Lake Erie. When this became unprofitable after the coming of the railroad the run was changed to Goderich and Georgian Bay where most of the remainder of the career of the PLOUGHBOY was spent. However, the end of the PLOUGHBOY came when she had been brought back to the Detroit River, and her named changed to the T. F. PARK for she burned one night when anchored in the stream opposite Detroit.



AMHERSTBURG.

An incorporated town in Essex Co., Ont., on the Detroit River, five miles above its junction with Lake Erie, and at the western terminus of the Canada Southern Railway, 18 miles from Windsor. It was at one time a garrison town, and was called Malden, the name of a fortress in the town. It contains a court house, several churches, saw and grist mills, sash, door and blind factory, an iron foundry, about sixty stores, several good hotels, and a telegraph office. Amherstburg is a port of entry.

Steamers run daily between Amherstburg and Detroit, Mich. Detroit is also reached via C.S.R. crossing from Amherstburg to Grosse Isle, by railway ferry, and from thence to Trenton, via Trenton Bridge, a beautiful and costly structure erected by the Canada Southern Railway. The fare from Detroit to Amherstburg by rail being sixty cents, and by boat fifty cents. Population about 2,600.

concealed.''

Among the furniture of the cabin there still remains a walnut table on which Rev. S. L. Adair prepared the sermons of a lifetime, and a stout rocking chair which the immigrants brought with them over the prairies. Both chair and table were often used by John Brown, his letters sent from the Adair home being wirtten on the minister's writing table.

But John Brown owned in Kansas neither house nor land.

Several other cabins about the country have had close association with John Brown.

A log cabin at Lane, in which John Brown often stayed, has but recently vanished under the tooth of time.

The best that any cabin or 'spring'' can claim in connection with the hero of Osawatomie and Harper's Ferry is that they were historically associated with the grim old fighter.

He used, but never owned them.

John Brown's association with the Adair cabin were doubtless the closest and most direct and continuous of his connection with any one spot in Kansas.

The battle of Osawatomie fell out in this wise.

It was the outocme of a Missouri raid. In the interests of the law and order of the bogus legislature of Kansa, 1,150 Missourians organized for the invasion of Kansas, under the command of United States Senator and acting Vice-President of the United States David Atehison.

[illegible]

Such were the heroic conditions under which the foundations of the state of Kansas were laid.

The simple cabin and scant fare of the pioneer, the "plain living and high thinking," of frontier life with their concomitants, were the sufficient base for John Brown's campaign for freedom in Kansas, as they had been for him in the east.

Rev. S. L. Adair, a Congregational minister from the east, had married a half sister of John Brown's, and had settled a mile and a half west of Osawatomie.

The original Adair cabin that often figures in John Brown's correspondence still stands on the farm owned and tilled by Charles S. Adair a son of its builder. The mutations of fifty years of history and tradition have cast a glamor about this relic of a by-gone age in which it has come to be popularly known as the John Brown cabin, though John Brown never owned it, nor, properly speaking, lived in it.

Very naturally the home of Uncle Adair became a sort of headquarters for the Brown family, and consequently a rendezvous for Free State men during the Kansas troubles, and the walls of the old cabin might a tale unfold of more than passing interest to the Kansas historian.

A modest typewritten placard, from the hand of Charles S. Adair, pinned by the door post the day of the semi-centennial, set forth the history of the cabin and its relation to the story of John Brown.

"The cabin was owned by Rev. S. L. Adair, a brother-in-law of John Brown. The logs of the back part were drawn together by John Brown with two yoke of oxen, were scored by Frederick Brown, son of John Brown, and were hewed by Henry Thompson, son-in-law of John Brown. In the back room, on Christmas day, 1853, the largest part of the slaves taken out of Missouri were

WOMAN DENIED DECREE ON DRUNKENNESS PLEA

Mrs. Florence Irene Nowacki, 36 years old, 2710 West Kentucky Street, who sued her husband, Julian T. Nowacki, Benham, Ky., for divorce on the grounds of drunkenness, was denied a divorce decree Saturday by Judge Churchill Humphrey, who confirmed the recommendation of Thomas J. Knight, Commissioner, before whom the evidence was heard. Commissioner Knight ruled that Mrs. Nowacki had failed to support her allegation by proof and that Mrs. Nowacki preferred to live in Louisville, even at some inconvenience, rather than live in a mountain town in comparative comfortable circumstances, where her husband is employed by a steel corporation. They married August 31, 1918.

FORMER BATTLE CREEK MAN COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Paducah, Ky., February 21.—(Special.)—David Hunt, a druggist who came here recently from Battle Creek, Mich., ended a protracted spree some time last night by committing suicide at the Broadway hotel. Morphine was the means employed. Hunt came here from Michigan several months ago, bringing with him his wife and several small children. He was an unusually bright man, but was addicted to drinking, and he did not make a success of his business and it had been observed for sometime that he was quite despondent. Last night, while under the influence of liquor, he took a room at the Broadway hotel and retired. When he did not show up this morning his room was broken into and his lifeless body was found upon the bed. He had not taken off his clothing and the features of his face showed that he had endured no agony. His act is attributed purely to financial embarrassment caused by drinking.

Here is the exchange of emails with McCracken Public Library. I'm very impressed at the extent of searching Eileen Smith did for us. I'm still at Atlantic City so if you want to take a look at the online reference she mentioned please do so. Even thought what she found and not this seems to clarify our quest for David J. At least we know where not to look.
Back in Virginia there is panic buying of gasoline with many stations out of fuel or long lines. I filled up here and I can get us home with 1/2 of a tank.

A search of the Paducah city directories in the late 1800s showed that there were three funeral homes operating at the time: Mattill and Effinger; M. Nance; and Watkins Funeral Home. Mattil and Effinger's book goes only to 1891. We don't have a book for M. Nance Funeral Home, and A.W. Watkins Funeral Home, on microfilm, did not have him listed.

Hotel listings in the 1898 and 1904 city directories show several hotels on Broadway, but none with the actual name of Broadway Hotel. I searched the directory for 1898 for his name but couldn't find him listed. None of the listings for druggists contained his name. We do not have a directory for 1899. If you would like to browse through the directories that we have online, you are welcome to go to our website, mclib.net, then to learn/digital collection/city directories.

I was not able to find a listing for him in the McCracken County cemetery books in our collection.

I am sorry that we could not find information regarding your great-great uncle; however, if we can be of assistance in the future, please let us know.

Best wishes,
Eileen Smith

Hello -- I'm checking back with you as you suggested, although it has been more than one month. As noted in the original email I'm looking for any funeral or burial information on David John Hunt who died in Paducah Feb. 21, 1899. Perhaps if your funeral books are now available you might be able to check for a record of him.
Thanks again!

Gary,

Thank you for reaching out to us. We apologize for the latency on this reply. Our Local and Family History Room is temporarily closed for construction. At this time, we do not have access to our funeral home books due to the construction. We unfortunately do not have any newspapers or microfilm from February of 1899. You might check back with us in a month and see if we can check our funeral home books. Again, sorry for the delay.

Additional Information:
He was my great great uncle, born 1863, died by overdose of morphine in Paducah Feb. 21, 1899. He had come to Paducah from Battle Creek, Michigan and was a druggist in the city. I have searched all McCracken cemeteries that have on-line databases. Images of the Paducah Sun for February and March do not seem to be available on-line. My research is hampered by the fact that Kentucky only began state records of deaths in 1911, or so I've read. I would think that a suicide of a local businessman would be newsworthy. David John Hunt was married but separated from his wife who lived in Kansas City MO. A son, Maurice Hunt may have claimed the body but we have no record of that. Any help you can provide would be greatly appreciated.

Thank you....

Obituary

Michael J. Nowacki, 69

Mar 3, 2021

Michael J. Nowacki, 69, affectionately known as "Big Bird," of Millville, Del., formerly of Brownsburg, Ind., passed away peacefully, surrounded by his loving family, on Sunday, Feb. 28, 2021.

He was born in Indianapolis, Ind., on Feb. 23, 1952, son of the late Julian T. Nowacki and the late Thelma Virginia (Hurt) Nowacki. He graduated from Carmel High School in Carmel, Ind., and also attended Ball State University in Muncie, Ind.

Nowacki owned and operated a painting company, Protect the Coast Inc., in Millville, Del., prior to his retirement. He loved living near the ocean, which brought him happiness and peace. He loved fishing and golfing. He struggled with alcoholism and was proud of his 32 years of sobriety. He never met a stranger and will be remembered as a man that gave the best advice and always put others before himself.

Nowacki is survived by his loving wife, of 37 years, Kimberly A. (Horn) Nowacki; his two children, Jessica Nowacki-Burns and her husband, Scott, of Dagsboro, Del., and Jason Nowacki and his fiancée, Olivia Morrison, of Homosassa, Fla.; a grandson, Wyatt Nowacki and his soon-to-be born grandson, Jack Burns; two brothers, Pat Maxwell and his wife, Cindy, and Tim Maxwell, all of Fishers, Ind.; and a sister, Marty Barrett of Odessa, Texas.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. on Saturday, March 6, 2021 at Mariner's Bethel United Methodist Church, 81 Central Avenue, Ocean View, Del. Condolences may be sent online at www.melsonfuneralservices.com. In lieu of flowers, the family suggested memorial contributions to MD Anderson Cancer Center at Cooper c/o The Cooper Foundation; 3 Cooper Plz., Ste. 500; Camden, NJ 08103 (online at https://foundation.cooperhealth.org/give/gifts-to-honor-or-remember).

He married Ellen Crimmins, daughter of Edmond Crimmins and Margaret Shaughnessy, on 25 Jan 1853 in Amherstburg ONT Canada. She was born in Sep 1837 in Limerick, Ireland. Notes for William George Hunt:
The first record of him is his marriage in Amherstburg, ONT. His occupation was usually marine engineer & have some records verifying this. He probably came to Toledo in 1894 & was in Toledo CD in 1895 living with Thomas.

Birth date from death certificate subtraction: 73 years, 10 mos. 22 days

Edward's 1885 obit. calls William "chief engineer"

Census:
1881 Amherstburg, ONT. Canada
1891 Amherstburg, ONT - Elizabeth & Francis only 2 ch. home

25 Aug.1919-Cabotia (formerly Hiawatha) wooden propeller freighter built in 1880 at Gibralter, MI went ashore on Main Duck Island in Lake ONTARIO and split her hull. A "constructive" loss.

Canada Southern RR reached the Detroit River in 1873. In 1883 the Michigan Central absorbed the CS RR. Then Michigan Central opened a ferry service from Windsor to Detroit. By 1888 the Grosse Ile/Stony Is. line was shut down. Michigan Central built a tunnel under the Detroit River which opened in 1910.

Amherstburg Echo-16 May 1884- The Transfer moved 4,283 cars from Windsor and 4,481 from Detroit between Apr 4 & May 4, 1884

Amherstburg Echo-11 Oct. 1889-W.G. submitted his resignation. Article mention hiring one man for steam fire engine and electric light and another as Chief of Police and janitor.

Details on the Transfer I. In Jan. 1878 it was averaging 35 trips a day. Interesting information from George W. Hilton's book Great Lake Car Ferries.

Amherstburg Echo-15 Apr. 1881-They received their new steam fire engine.

Amherstburg Echo-22 July 1887- W.G. name in list of Fire Brigade members. Rare time mentioned other than in Council meetings.

Burial details: Calvary Cemetery, Dorr St. Toledo, OH - Sec. 29, Lot 104, grave 6

Notes for Ellen Crimmins:
Orphaned by 1851- think her mother could have passed away but father still living.

15 Dec 1877 deed Ellen purchased 13 George St. from A. Bastien. On same date was recorded a mortgage between Wm. George & Ellen & A. Bastien. On17 Nov. 1880 another mortgage transaction was between Wm. G & Ellen and M. Tworney which indicate the later was the purchaser. Did he just supply the mortgage or did he get the property? Marsh Coll. has the deeds. The streets have been renumbered as Lot #13 George St. is now 229 George St. Have detail descriptions of deed transfers but it was not known even then just why Ellen & George gave up the house. It is assumed it was a default on the mortgage payment. I also have a copy of Wm. and Ellen's signatures from one of the deeds. Both had very nice handwriting.

1899 Akron, OH CD - Mrs Ellen (wid. W.G) res 106 Division - same as Ida
1900 Toledo census - Ellen & Ida listed with Thomas
1901 Toledo CD - Ellen listed as "removed to Clifton Forge, VA" - Ida not shown

Subject: Re: Another Question

I don't know about Jack, however I believe he and Roy and Mary, (Roys wife) are all buried in the same cematery....Roy had a Mass at the Catholic Church in Carlsbad and was buried in local cemetary, I do not know if it was a Catholic one or not. After Roy died (a few yr's after) Mary's sister, Anne Hayes Billiet moved to Carlsbad and lived with Mary, Mary preceeded her in death and the entire estate was left to the Catholic Church in town. Anne and Mary had a brother named Harold Hayes, his wife was alive at least till Christmas 2006 or 07 as I always had a card from her. Her name was Evangaline Hayes (EVE) at 142 23rd St. - Apt. 503 - Toledo, OH 43624-2512....They had a daughter, Marilyn ???, she apparently visited Anne after Mary died and there was a MAJOR FALLING OUT over their leaving everything to the church....She also walked off with Aunt Mae's (Mary Isabelle Hunt) diamond, which Mary had inherited. Anne was livid. End of story as I know it. hope this helps.

Subject: Another Question

Do you know what cemetery Roy (and Jack) was buried in? Was it a Catholic? Or what church they attended?

You notice I don't ask for simple things! :)

engineering next spring.

On Saturday morning, John Hill, a brakeman on the Michigan Central, residing in St. Thomas, was painfully hurt at Comber. He was engaged in pulling a pin when the moving cars caught him, and a wheel passed over the instep of his right foot and the heel of his left. A doctor who was passing was called upon, and attended to Hill. No bones were broken, but the right foot was found to be badly bruised.

MAYOR McGEE, on Friday, fined Hiram Lane, of Essex Centre, $20 and costs, for violation of the Dunkin Act, on the 7th inst. He has also fined James Hawkins $1 and costs for assaulting and using abusive language to Janitor Hunt of the Town Hall. To-day another case of Sorensen vs. Matthews and a grist of liquor cases, from Leamington and other parts of the county, are to come before the Mayor here.

HUNT (From the research of Anita LeBlanc along with new information.)

The earliest record of the Hunt family is the marriage of William George Hunt and Ellen Crimmins on January 25, 1853 in St. John the Baptist R.C. Church, Amherstburg, Essex Co., Ontario, Canada. William George was born in England circa 1825. British records show over two dozen men with the exact same name born in that time frame making it all but impossible to identify William's ancestors at this time.

They had ten children, all born in Amherstburg except Thomas, their first son, who was born in Wayne Co. Michigan. Perhaps Thomas' parents were in Wayne Co. for employment or visiting friends when he was born. In the 1800's Canadians and Americans moved quite freely across the Detroit River by boat or ferry. All ten siblings were baptized in St. John's and five are known to be interred in the church's cemetery having lived out their lives in the Amherstburg Ontario area.

Thomas married Ellen Josephine Lovett in 1879. In 1892 they and their first five children moved to Toledo Ohio. They were joined in 1895 by his parents William and Ellen, and his sister Elizabeth. Thomas' last two children were born in Toledo. He is listed in the 1900 U.S. census with his wife Ellen, six children, his mother and sister Elizabeth.

The family was completely missed in the 1910 census and by the 1920 census Thomas had died (1917) and Ellen Josephine was living with just two of their children, Mary Isabell and Roy Patrick. All three moved to Staten Island sometime after 1920 and were living together in the 1930 census. Ellen died in 1931 and was interred in St. Peter's Cemetery on the island. By the 1940 census siblings Mary Isabell, John David and Roy Patrick (with his wife Mary Hayes) were living together in Queens, New York.

William George died in 1897 and is buried in Calvary Cemetery (Toledo) in an unmarked grave. His wife, Ellen Crimmins, eventually moved to Springfield Massachusetts to live with her son Alfred. Her 1906 obituary says she was survived by only two children, Alfred and Thomas.

(Note: Virtually all of the 1890 U.S. Census perished in a January 1921 fire in the U.S. Dept. of Commerce building in Washington DC. leaving us with no official information about the Hunts between the 1880 and 1900 enumerations.)

CRIMMINS (From the research by Anita LeBlanc, edited.)

Ellen Crimmins' parents, Edmond and Margaret, both died by 1851, probably in Ireland. On her marriage record Ellen gave her mother's maiden name as Margaret Shanessy. In the church records of Shanagolden, County Limerick, there is a baptism of a Mary Crimmins (b. 9 Oct. 1836), daughter of Edmond and Margaret (Shanahan) Crimmins. At this point I (Anita) am unable to tell if it is our Ellen or another person.

The 1851 Willington Quay, England census shows John and Mary (Donovan) Crimmins with John's "orphaned niece", Ellen, in their household.

John Crimmins was a career army man. He entered the 95th Regt. of Foot in 1819 and retired on August 8, 1842. He was pensioned off to Canada July 1, 1851. On a plaque at Fort Malden in Amherstburg is this inscription: "In 1851 when the British Regiments were withdrawn, Military Pensioners were sent to Fort Malden to maintain the fort and provide a degree of military strength." They were offered homes or small land grants in exchange for employment by the province of Ontario as policemen and for serving as an interim military force.

Crimmins and its variations has never been a common name.

Ellen Crimmins was raised by her uncle John Crimmins and his wife Mary Donovan

LOVETT (From the research by Anita LeBlanc, edited)

On Ellen Josephine Lovett's marriage record her parents are listed as John Lovett and Mary Shea. On her death record her mother is listed as Mary Long.

Baptismal records at Dingle, Ireland show both John Lovett and Mary Shea and John Lovett and Mary Long. The record shows a Nell, born 5 June 1858, daughter of John Lovett and Mary Shea. There was also a "Batt" (Bartholomew) born 28 January 1856 and a child born 10 October 1852. The residences of both sets of parents was always Strand St. The marriage register for Thomas and Ellen shows her name as "Nelly" and her mother as Mary Shea. Ellen's grave monument is inscribed "Ellen J. Hunt".

As Ellen was just a child when she came from Ireland, her parents or other adults must have accompanied her. She should be on the 1870 or 1871 census as a child but she is not.

Ellen had a brother, John, who married Katherine Cavanaugh in 1876. John was born in1850 in Ireland and died December 13, 1915 in Detroit. Katherine was born 1851 in Holyoke, Massachusetts and died in 1911 in Amherstburg. The couple are interred together in St. John the Baptist Cemetery. They had one son who died in infancy.

Katherine's obituary states that Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hunt and Mr. and Mrs. William (John) Hunt from Toledo went to her funeral. It also states that a Mrs. Smith, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Hunt accompanied them. Her identity in the Hunt family still cannot be determined. John Lovett was not listed among Katherine's survivors although she preceded him by four years. (Photo, Lovett gravestone)

It is generally believed that the Lovett's were an American family and only later lived in Amherstburg. Katherine's obituary states that they married in 1876 and "came to Amherstburg" in 1880, which supports that theory.

Cemetery Research

St. John the Baptist Cemetery, Amherstburg, Ontario Canada:

At least five of William and Ellen Hunt's children are said to be buried in this 11 acre cemetery in use since 1864. Co-located with Rose Hill Cemetery and bordered by Alma St. and Meloche Rd, it is part of a family of seven Catholic cemeteries in the Windsor-Essex area. This is the third and present site for the cemetery. The first was located on Bathurst Street and was destroyed by fire in 1843. The second cemetery was located near the church on Brock Street.

In addition to the Hunts there are several members of the Crimmins and Lovett families here. Burial records are not fully digitized so a request was emailed to the cemetery office (9/6/17) for further information. I was not able to locate the Hunt graves although a few Crimmins markers and one Lovett marker are still standing. Sections of the cemetery are bordered by paved lanes but lot and row markers are absent requiring that you walk each entire section to search for specific graves.

Calvary Cemetery, Toledo Ohio

Calvary cemetery, the largest Catholic cemetery in Toledo in terms of interments, sits on 140 acres in the very heart of the city. Founded in 1886 as the burial place for the dead of all congregations of the city, the cemetery today has recorded over 106,000 interments.

William George Hunt, his first born son Thomas and Thomas' four year old son Alfred are here. Burial records clearly show the section, lot and grave numbers for each but none of the three have monuments. Their numbered lot markers, usually stone or metal, are gone, probably sunken in the ground. At the time of burial the cemetery would have placed a number marker on each grave, pending placement of a monument, so that the family could easily locate it.

Grave monuments may be missing because families couldn't afford one after paying for the funeral. From 1900 to 1915 the cost of a typical funeral was $150 to $200 with a small engraved granite or marble monument adding another $50 or more. The average annual salary in 1915 was about $700. Paying a third of one's annual salary to bury a loved one would not have been easy.

Monuments are also lost to vandalism, weather, ground defects, lack of maintenance and indifference. Perpetual care seems to mean only grass cutting and road maintenance, not even lifting up a toppled marker. Families relocate leaving nobody to maintain the grave. Very close to what should be William George's grave a huge tree limb had recently fallen and destroyed two old monuments, although neither was a Hunt marker. You could walk right on top of the Hunt graves and miss them entirely.

Forest Cemetery, Toledo Ohio

This 80 acre city run cemetery was established in 1832 and is an oasis in an otherwise run down section of the city. Burial records are digitized and easily found on www. toledo.oh.gov. Of the eight Hunts buried here four have monuments and four do not.

Section, lot and grave monuments for four Hunts were easy to find in the newer sections but not in the Old Commons section where four other Hunts are buried. Again, many lot and row markers are sunken in the ground or missing and no Hunt monuments were located here. A recent newspaper article noted that the cemetery has only five maintenance workers. Grass cutting is kept up but restoration of broken and fallen monuments is not.

HISTORY

Great Lakes Dredge & Dock Company's operations span the period between 1890 and the present day, and have helped shape the living environment and transportation resources of communities across the world, including America's largest cities and their ports. Great Lakes has played a major role in creating shorelines and waterways through both its dredging and construction activities. Through this period, Great Lakes has grown to be the largest dredging contractor in the U.S., and a major international competitor.

Founded in 1890 as the partnership of William A. Lydon and Fred C. Drews, Lydon & Drews' first project was construction of an off-shore tunnel to extend the water intake at Chicago Avenue to a new intake farther out in Lake Michigan. The company experienced tremendous expansion in the 1890s, growing in Chicago and opening satellite operations in virtually every major city on the Great Lakes. Projects at the time included the shoreline structures for Chicago's Columbian Exposition in 1892, including the foundations for what later came to be known as Navy Pier.

In 1905, the company changed its name to Great Lakes Dredge & Dock Company. The company's assets had expanded to include thirteen dredges and ten tugboats. Projects involving dredging, pile-driving, construction of foundations, bridges, breakwaters and lighthouses were completed in Chicago, as well as in such cities as Toledo, Indiana Harbor, Waukegan (Illinois), Mud Lake (Michigan), and Racine (Wisconsin). By 1920, Great Lakes was operating in Albany, New York City, Philadelphia, Boston, and other east coast locations. Accordingly, an Atlantic Division was established in the Whitehall Building in downtown Manhattan.

Between 1900 and 1950, the company completed a number of significant projects, including:

The American Ship Building Company, Toledo OH

(formerly Linn & Craig, in Gibraltar MI, [1869-1882], J. Craig & Sons, in Trenton MI, [1883-1889], Blythe Craig Shipbuilding, in Toledo OH, [1890-1893], Craig Shipbuilding [1893-1906] and Toledo Shipbuilding [1906-1913])

The shipyard in Toledo was started by John Craig and his son, John F. Craig, who transferred the operation to Long Beach CA in 1906 and sold the Toledo yard to The American Ship Building Company, which renamed it Toledo Shipbuilding. When AmShip folded, the yard reverted to the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority. It is still in operation today as a repair yard, at its original location on Front Street at the foot of the appropriately named Craig Street, between Consaul and York Streets. It was briefly leased to Manitowoc Marine but is now leased to Ironhead Marine. See it from the air on Google here.

The Tugboat Captain

A tugboat is a wonderful thing. Lacking the majestic height of a sailing ship or the fearsome rake of a warship, its appeal is found in its compact power. Among ships it is the wiry, constantly moving, 5 foot 8 inch basketball guard or the explosive, high leaping 85 pound gymnast: it isn't supposed to be able to do what it does, but nothing can equal its ability. The tugboat sacrifices speed for raw power, power used to push, to pull, to maneuver. Cruising down a river, scurrying about some port, or working in the open sea, its measly 6 to 9 knot top speed makes sailing on it seem like a trip that is all pleasure; as if no company with an ounce of sense would ever let itself move so slowly.

The New Jersey Sun. Like all of the boats owned by Sun Transportation, Inc., the New Jersey Sun bears the name of her home station combined with the word Sun. A seventeen year old tug, she is 104 feet 5 inches in length and has a beam of 30 feet. Pulling a fully loaded barge, she cruises in the range of 6 to 9 knots, her speed heavily influenced by the tides and currents. Her crew is made up of six experienced sailors: the captain, the first mate, the chief engineer, the chief steward, and two tankermen. The lower bridge, the one with seven windows, is used whenever a loaded barge is being pushed or when towing is being done; the upper bridge, containing all of the necessary controls but scaled-down electronic navigational aids, is used for maneuvering an empty barge, where the barge's height would interfere with the crew's line of sight. Because it's closer to the water, the lower bridge offers a smoother ride.

But move they do. They move large ships. They move barges filled with coal, oil, and other bulk materials. They move the waste of large cities. On the Mississippi, the Hudson, the Delaware, and other parts of the 25,000-mile waterway system they move more than 600 million tons of goods each year, goods that would otherwise require vast fleets of trucks. For example, a typical gasoline barge, loaded with its capacity of 2,400,000 gallons of gas, will meet the demand for 200,000 fill-ups at the pump, provide the fuel for driving 384,000,000 (yes, that's million) miles in the average car, and give that average car the needed combustion to putt-putt its way around the world 14,769 times. To make that delivery by truck would take a convoy of tanker trucks that would move along bumper-to-bumper, stretching for nearly three miles.

It is a paradox of twentieth century America that the things we are most wary of are often the things we have grown most dependent upon. We are a country consumed by consumption. Nothing illustrates this point more than our unquenchable thirst for oil and its derivatives. For the vast majority of Americans, every movement is planned around the automobile: jobs, family activities, the most basic necessities rely on some form of powered transportation. And yet the source of transportation's lifeblood, that monster that we label "big oil," is seen as the enemy of the environment, a greedy beast that must be watched, distrusted, and vilified. The great paradox of our time becomes our simultaneous consumption and fear of oil: we use gasoline to drive to meetings and oil to heat our homes where we watch television, and the meetings and programs condition us to despise the very source of our mobility and warmth.

Until we can resolve the dilemma created by our demand for oil, we will need to count on such things as tugboats. We will need to rely on them for their steady reliability, for their constant concern for safety and the environment, and for their economical response to our demand. Modern tugboats are a marvel of engineering. Small, highly maneuverable, and incredibly powerful, they and their crewmembers play a crucial role in our goods and materials society.

Chris Brogan

No celebration marks the occasion of Captain Chris Brogan's fiftieth birthday. No cake, no candles, no cards. There is, instead, the relentless pounding of the waves and the constant, throaty growling of the boat's engines. As does every member of the crew, for dinner Chris has a choice between roast pork with steamed fresh vegetables and mashed potatoes and gravy, or lemon chicken with rice pilaf, both meticulously prepared and presented by the boat's professionally trained chef. For dessert Chris can select thick brownies, teeming with walnuts and piled high with whipped cream, or fresh fruit salad, or cookies, still warm from the oven, tucked neatly alongside a scoop of French vanilla ice cream. But there is no party or special treatment. He is aboard his boat, Sun Transportation's New Jersey Sun, and is closely focused on his role as its captain.

As he does every day during his two week shift, he eats at 5:30; and after dinner he stands watch on the bridge from 6:00 PM till midnight. He examines the twin radar screens--one set to scan a one mile radius, the second set to cast its eye on farther distances--monitors the boat's Global Positioning System (GPS) to ensure that the boat is on course, and studies the inky darkness of the surrounding sea, watching for ships' lights or illuminated marker buoys, constantly moving from one source of information to another, constantly alert to the hazards and responsibilities that he embraces with such serene delight. All the while he talks softly to himself.

His talk is not the rambling of an eccentric or the mumbling of someone whose mind is drifting about. It is the talk of someone who is solely responsible. It is the talk of someone who must rely on his own experience and education. It is a way of stepping through a list of reminders, a way of directing the process on which he is so intently focused. Perhaps even more, it is a way of protecting his charges: his crew, his boat, and his cargo. Every moment brings new decisions, and every decision must be the right one, for he is the captain and he allows himself no room for error.

And no matter how carefully you listen, no matter how much you eavesdrop, you will not pass beyond the carefully maintained persona that is "Captain Brogan" and into the deeper thing that is "Chris Brogan" until he is sure that the boat is safe, that he is in charge, and that you present no danger. It's not that he's dishonest or duplicitous; it's just that, like most of us, there are two sides to Chris Brogan, and the dominant side of the one who sails the New Jersey Sun is to be measured, attentive to business, and careful.

But when he is content that everything is as it should be, the other side of Chris Brogan emerges and his conversation weaves in and out of the two roles that make up the single person. Then you begin to understand the reasons behind his tendency to draw pictures, his habit of mentoring his crew by telling them of his own past mistakes, and even his penchant for talking to himself.

> When I was young, they didn't know that I had learning disabilities. Learning disabled wasn't even part of the vocabulary of the time. So school was a disaster for me, and I dropped out in the ninth grade. I finished my high school education later, in the Marine Corps, but my early failures haunted me.

Self-taught in many of the skills he needs to navigate--geometry and trigonometry eluded him until later years when he made his living as a pilot in the harbors of Connecticut and on Long Island Sound and its tributary waters--he is intensely aware of the problems people can encounter when trying to learn. Almost as if he is over-compensating, he embraces technology and applies it to almost every aspect of his work. "Technology is great," he'll tell you, "The more we get the better off I am. That and common sense, you'll do all right."

But technology isn't what brought him to sea, and that's where the other part of his being comes in to play. He is a Towing Master--the technical term, he'll tell you, is the one that appears on his license, "Master - Inland Waters Any Gross Tons" and "Pilot, as endorsed Any Gross Tons, and Master Coastwise"--largely because he has spent the major part of his life around the water. The son of a ship's master--when he shows you the picture of his father that hangs in his cabin, Chris will tell you that his father's license allowed him to sail "any ship, any waters." He also saw tugboats as a means for achieving those things that his lack of formal education threatened to deny him. Finally, Chris--and later his brother, Pat, who also commands a Sun tug--were drawn to the sea because it offered them the ability to maintain a measure of control over their working lives:

> We're like pirates! This is one of the last jobs on the face of the earth where you can be the absolute master of what you do. You can train the men, configure the boat, lay things out the way your experience tells you will work best. Sure there's a purpose to this, but it's still fun. It's like having your own yacht with a purpose.

Before he could take the helm of that "yacht with a purpose," however, he had to put in his time as a deckhand, a pilot, and a first mate. It took six years before he had a master's license, and undending years of sitting for First Class Pilot's licenses--to get one requires that you learn and memorize course, buoy, depth of water, rock, reef, and shoal, of the area that you are being tested for. As if that wasn't enough, the descriptions and dimensions of all manmade objects have to be committed to memory. The test takes at least eight hours, includes drawing the entire chart to scale, and you have to score 90 percent to pass.

Along the way he also picked up the skills required to maneuver--whether pushing, pulling, or alongside--a tug and barge filled with nearly 2.5 million gallons of fuel, in any condition of weather, tide, or current. Along the way there were accidents and close calls; but rather than hide from them and pretend to be something he isn't, Chris uses them as the source of instruction and learning. He commonly gives jobs to his first mate and in the process of laying out the requirements of the job he'll explain how he went wrong in the past and what he learned from it. "I want everyone on this boat to know as much as possible. Let them be as informed as I am. That will give me more freedom."

That notion of freedom, the idea that sweeps through his conversation with the deliberation and illumination of a scanning radar, is Chris Brogan's reason for bringing technology to what is, by any standard, a generally low tech profession. If asked about his affinity for gadgets, he'll explain quickly:

> Technology gives me more freedom by lessening paper work and making mistakes more rare. Computers, GPS, radar, and the like let me enjoy the details instead of fighting them.

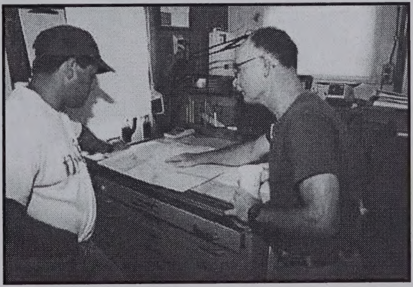
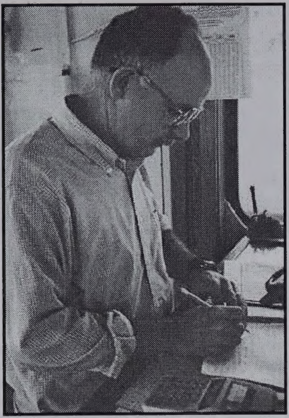
So when he is not standing watch or training the crew, he can generally be found in his cabin, working at his laptop computer, designing or refining a piece of software. Whether it's a program that can be used to navigate Sun's boats from one port to another, calculate trip schedules, or handle the routine tasks of ordering, inventorying, and cataloging, Chris works to match the advantages of the computer to the needs of the shipping industry. And while some people might think it odd that he loves this job enough to work the two-week-on, two-week-off schedule that comes with it, a schedule that forces him to put off an occasional birthday party, Chris Brogan is happy. After all, candles can wait, but the sea never stops churning.

The Tugboat Captain - A Gallery



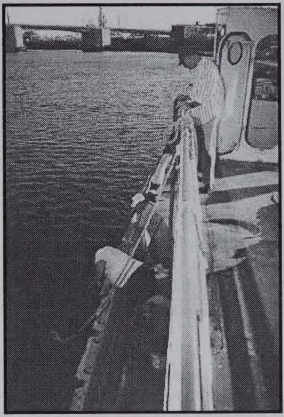
A discussion of navigation.
An important part of Chris's job is ensuring that members of the crew have an opportunity to learn and work toward promotion. Here he discusses a navigational problem with First Mate Michael Smith,



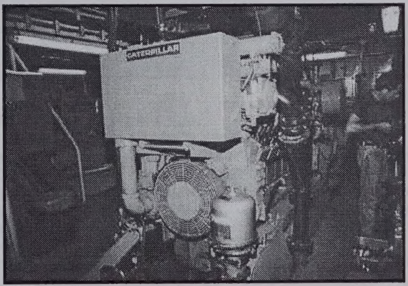
Course Planning.
Because the speed of the boat is affected by the movement of the tides and the currents, it's necessary for Chris to plot the boat's course based on the date and the time of departure. Given some of the new navigational aids, especially those that make use of the boat's recently installed Global Positioning System, Chris has undertaken the project of planning sets of courses which will be programmed into the autopilot and recalled for use as they are needed.

Programming the course.
Once wavepoints have been calculated, they're programmed into the autopilot. Using GPS technology, the autopilot will compare the actual location of the boat with the programmed course. Looking down from a satellite, a GPS can determine, within 20 feet, the boat's position on the globe. The large black boxes on either side of the console contain the boat's radar monitors. When the boat is underway, one monitor is usually set to scan for a radius of 1.5 miles and the other is set to scan for a radius of 6 miles. Scanning radars help assure that any maneuvering that has to be done can be done in a routine manner.

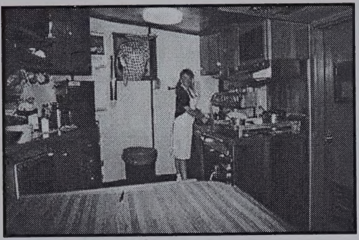
assigning to Smith the job of computing the scheduled wavepoints for the journey from Sun's Marcus Hook, Pennsylvania, refinery to the delivery point outside of Albany, New York. Wavepoints are nautical milestones that use buoys as checkpoints and assure that the boat is on course and schedule. Like most members of the crew, Smith is qualified by both experience and education, but the mentoring system Sun's captains use guarantees that all hands are given an opportunity to keep current with advances in technology.



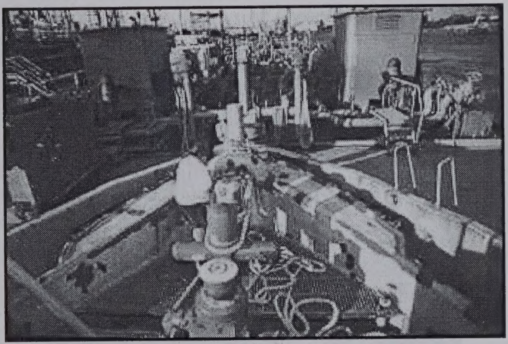
Getting into pushing gear.
Under Chris's careful scrutiny, tankermen Wesley Gamble and Thomas Wyatt help to set up the lines needed when pushing a barge. Because safety is given such a high priority, every system has checks and double checks, and every caution is taken to assure that a barge doesn't end up adrift. Here Wes and Tom take turns greasing one of the 2 inch lines that secure the barge to the boat. Grease is applied to make sure that the lines don't fray and break as a result of rubbing against the boat. The small, booth-like room behind Chris houses the controls for handling the two powerful winches that are used for pulling and pushing the barge.



Below decks.
The engine room houses two 1,450 horsepower, Caterpillar diesel engines that drive the boat, two smaller diesel engines that provide electrical power for the boat's systems, and the workshop in which Chief Engineer Mark Finucane handles the job of keeping the boat sound and running. From the kitchen to the bridge,

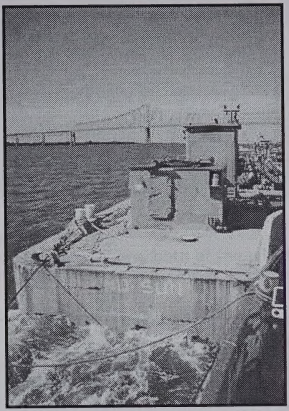


The galley.
Work schedules on a tugboat place unusual demands on Chief Steward Darcy Lever. First and foremost the food must be good. It is. Secondly, because she's working with six different palettes, the food must have variety. It does. Breakfast is usually the familiar cereal-egg menu, but lunch and dinner generally feature two or three choices and a range of diet-conscious selections. For example, dessert after dinner might be pie ala mode, but weight watchers would have the option to ask for yogurt and fresh fruit. While the galley appears small, it contains all the elements of a small restaurant kitchen, and the crew's work schedule means it rarely has to accommodate more than four people at a time. Tug crews work two weeks at a time. While they are scheduled to work, they stay on or close to the boat and work in shifts: one tankerman and the captain work six hours; after that time the other tankerman and the first mate work the next six hours; then the rotation begins again. The chief steward and the chief engineer work as needed and inevitably work at least twelve hours a day.

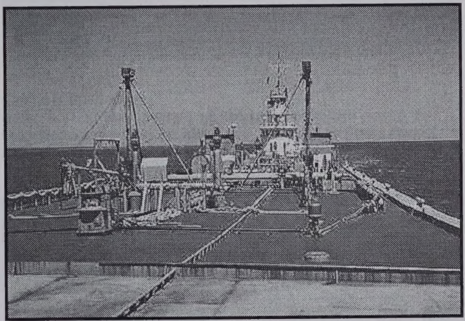


Sitting in the notch, ready to get underway.
In order to push a loaded barge, the tug is maneuvered into a cutout at the aft end of the barge. This cutout, called "the notch," is like a ten foot wedge that's cut in to the barge in a shape that conforms to the bow of the tug. The tug eases into the notch until its cushioning, rubber bumper is against the barge, and lines are tied off to securely join the two. Side lines are then run and result in a linkage that's so rigid it's as if the barge and the tug were a single unit. The barge is unpowered, and the structures on top are pump housings and a shelter used by the tankermen while they supervise loading and unloading.

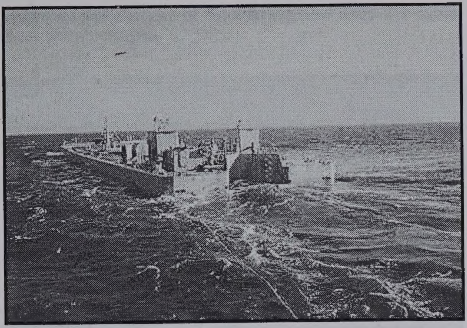
anything that goes wrong or requires repair is his responsibility. While the sound of the running engines is nearly deafening, the engines and the space itself are kept meticulously clean and make it a pleasant place to work.



Pushing the Island Sun.
Filled with nearly 2.4 million gallons of gasoline, 15 feet of the barge, Island Sun, is below the water. The cable on the left is one of two that are connected to the boat's winches and are used to keep the barge snugly against the boat.



A view from the Island Sun.
Looking back from the bow of the barge, the New Jersey Sun seems dwarfed. That's not surprising, since its 315 feet in length and 64 feet in width make the barge more than three times as long and twice as wide as the boat. In order to strengthen the structure of the barge and minimize the size of any spill that might occur, the interior of the barge is a series of tanks rather than one single tank. If the top were peeled off, the lower portion of the barge would resemble a sectioned icecube tray.



Moving into tow position.
It's safer to tow a barge than to push it when sailing in potentially choppy, open waters. So at the mouth of a river, before entering the sea lanes, the lines holding the barge against the tug are untied and the tug moves around the barge and positions itself in front of the barge. Then, using a cable running from one of the winches to the front of the barge, towing begins. In the process, the shape and size of the notch can be clearly seen Letting out cable.

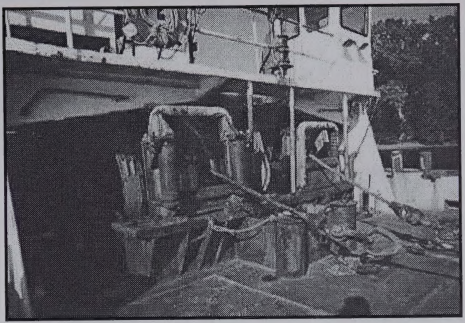
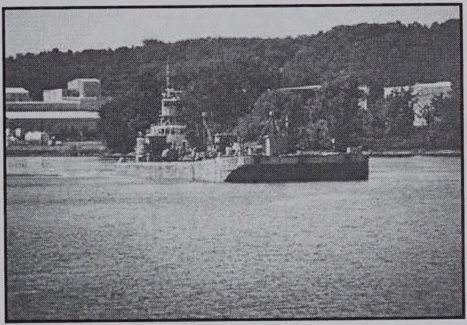
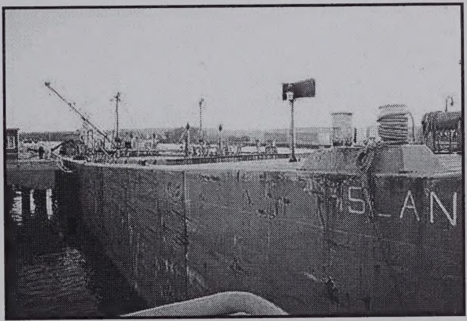
The length of cable fed to the barge is determined largely by the wave height and the depth of the water. Rougher seas call for more cable, but the cable is heavy, so the greater the amount of cable that's unreeled, the deeper it sinks. For instance, the distance shown is this photo suggests that the cable will be running about 20 feet below the surface. What results is a series of calculations that help to determine how much cable should be fed to the barge given the depth of the water. One of Chris's recent projects was finding a mathematician who helped produce a chart that can be used



The winches.
Using 2 inch diameter cable, both of the winches are used when pushing the barge. One is used for towing.

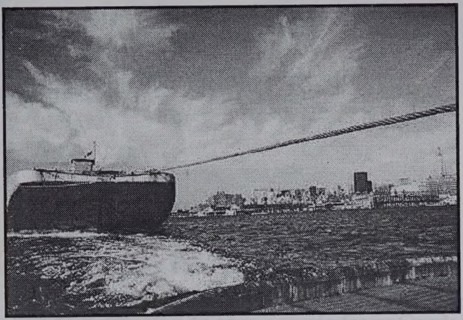


Coming in to port.
Before arriving, the tug again goes into the notch so that the barge can be precisely maneuvered to the dock.

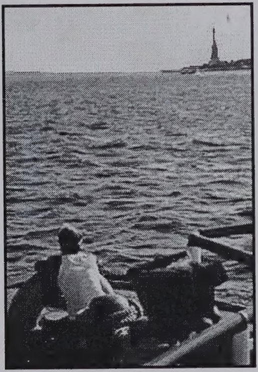


Emptied.
As the cargo is unloaded, a process that takes about eleven hours, the barge slowly rises until only three or four feet of it are below water. It's hard to believe that it's the same vessel that was being towed and pushed the day before.

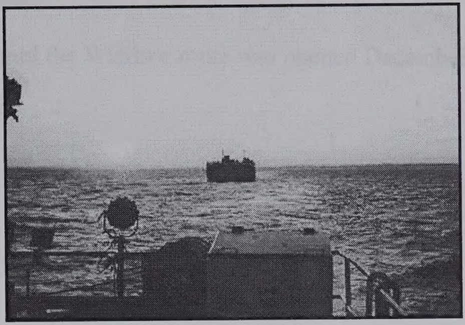
to speed up the process of calculating how deep the cable runs at given lengths.



Passing New York City.
The dramatic skyline of New York City in the background, the Island Sun looms above the tugboat as they approach the mouth of the Hudson, heading toward the open sea. Empty, the barge presents no significant safety risk, and its height makes it impractical if not impossible to manipulate with the tug in the notch, so it's usually towed. Because it's on a river where there's considerable traffic, the cable is not fed out very far.



A moment of reflection.
Passing the Statue of Liberty, a member of the crew takes a minute to enjoy the beauty of life aboard the New Jersey Sun.



Sunset at sea.
Moving along at about 8 knots, the sea relatively calm, it's difficult to imagine a more tranquil way to earn a living on the beach near Leamington during last Friday's storm. The tug Parker got the Suffel off on Monday morning and brought her to this port, where she left part of her load of lumber, and then proceeded to Detroit to go on dry-dock. The schooner New Hampshire and scows Starlight and Helen, all of Detroit, were loading lumber that had been washed ashore from the wrecks a few weeks ago and were bound for Wyandotte, Mich., and the schooner Suffel of Port Burwell was loading lumber for Toronto.

Low water.-Last Friday the high winds from the southwest caused the water in the river here to go down as low as ever it has been known, being over three feet below the average. None of the larger class of vessels dared venture to cross the lime-kilns either up or down, and had to lie to here and at Detroit to wait for a rise. About ten o'clock that morning the Transfer got aground as she was backing out of the slip at Stoney Island and lay there all day, no trains being ferried across and the passengers being carried back and forth by the little steamer Dahlke. The tug Prince Alfred brought down a line to her about ten o'clock that night, but the water had then raised so far that she was enabled to work herself off.

Wreck and loss of life.-During the storm on Lake Erie early last Friday morning, the small steam barge Young Hickory, loaded with wood, sprang a leak and sank between Colchester and Bar Point. The engineer and a boy became excited and jumped overboard and the former was drowned. His name was Wm. McAlpine and he hailed from Sheridan, Ohio. It is said he was an unmarried man the decision of the Governor-General.

THE Wyandotte Courier, in announcing the intention of the Canada Southern to build another ferry steamer to run between Amherstburg and Stony Island, takes occasion to state that the Transfer "has proved a discouraging failure, needing constant and costly repairs, and never meeting the requirements of the road". The falsity of these statements about the Transfer must be apparent to all who know anything about that boat, as it is well-known that she has always been able to do more business than the road has furnished her since it was built, and that she has done more than any other ferry boat on the rivers. She has run steadily for over five years, having only once been taken to dry-dock for repairs during the wholetime, and the only other repairs she has had, have been such as are required by any boat in service. The intention in building the new boat is not to take the place of the Transfer, but to assist in the ferrying of cars, as is done by the different G. W. R. boats at Detroit. The new steamer will probably be a composite one and will be built either at Wyandotte or Buffalo—very likely at the latter place.

[illegible] OF THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

The Wyandotte Courier, in announcing the intention of the Canada Southern to build another ferry steamer to run between Amherstburg and Stony Island, takes occasion to state that the Transfer "has proved a discouraging failure, needing constant and costly repairs, and never meeting the requirements of the road". The falsity of these statements about the Transfer must be apparent to all who know anything about that boat, as it is well-known that she has always been able to do more business than the road has furnished her since it was built, and that she has done more than any other ferry boat on the river. The boat ran steadily for over five years, having only once been taken to dry-dock for repairs during the whole time, and the only other repairs she has had, have been such as are required by any boat in service. The intention in building the new boat is not to take the place of the Transfer, but to assist in the ferrying of cars, as is done by the different G. W. R. boats at Detroit. The new steamer will probably be a duplicate one, and will be built either at Wyandotte or Detroit—very likely at the latter place.

The steamer barge Isaac May has been laid up at Fraser's dock for the winter.

The steamer R.N. Rice has made her last trip and laid up. The Northwest will soon follow suit.

The steamer Lake Breeze has made several trips to Windsor and down the lake shore this week.

The Ada E. Allen got fast in the ice in the Thames River on Monday and the ferry Victoria had to go up and release her.

X A fire broke out in the hold of the steamer Florence, lying at the Canada Southern dock, at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. It caught from the fire box[7] but was soon extinguished with the aid of the crew of the Transfer.

Michigan Central Railroad

One of the predecessor railroads to the Michigan Central was the Canada Southern Railway. The Canada Southern reached the Detroit River in 1873, six years after the Great Western, and immediately began a cross river ferry service. A ferry slip was built in Gordon, Ontario and another in Grosse Ile. The Gross Ile slip was connected to mainland Michigan by a series of bridges. This arrangement lasted until 1883 when the Canada Southern Railway was absorbed by the Michigan Central. The same year the Michigan Central opened a ferry service from Windsor to Detroit and by 1888 the Gross Ile to Gordon ferry service was shut down. The Michigan Central built a tunnel under the Detroit River and in 1910 the tunnel opened to traffic. The Michigan Central ended cross river ferry operations and eventually sold all of their ferries.

Canadian Pacific Railway Ferries

The Candia Pacific Railway completed tracks to Windsor in 1890 and opened a cross river ferry service to Detroit the same year. The ferries Michigan II and Ontariowere put in service in 1890. Both of the ferries were steel paddle boats and the Michigan II had the record of being the largest paddle ferry to see service on the Great Lakes. By 1916 the Canadian Pacific reached an accord with the Michigan Central

THE AMHERSTBURG ECHO.

AMHERSTBURG COUNCIL.

Monday, March 8th.

Council met at 8 p. m.

Present, the Mayor, in the chair, the Reeve, Deputy Reeve and Councillors Heard, Florey, Pulford, Bastien, Green, Morin and Wilson.

On motion, T. Shuttleworth was, in the absence of the Clerk, appointed Clerk pro tem, and the reading of the minutes deferred.

A communication was read from the Mother Superior of the convent, asking for the free use of the hall, for a few hours, two afternoons, for rehearsal, also for the use of the council chamber for a dressing room on the evening of the 17th inst.

The Mayor stated that they have engaged the hall for that evening, in which to hold a concert, and he had told them the rent would be $8.

On motion the Reeve and Mr. Pulford, the application of the Mother Superior of the convent was granted.

A petition was read from Bernard Finucan, asking for a remission of taxes.

Accounts were read from John Gasen, reeling and hanging hose, 50 cts.; W. K. Wright, hauling fire engine to dock and back 50 cts.; from H. Cote, hauling coal 50 cts.; from Geo. Stephenson, drum, $20, and John Lowe, interest on note, $10.

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Florey, the accounts of J. Gasen, H. Cote and W. K. Wright, were referred to the Fire and Police Committee.

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Heard, the petition of Bernard Finucan was referred to the Health and Charity Committee, and the account of G. Stephenson was referred to the Building and Cemetery Committee.

The Clerk having arrived, the minutes of the last regular meeting were read, and on motion of Messrs. Florey and yea to the report. Mr. Hunt had frequently proved his incapacity. He wished it distinctly understood that if any accident occurred with the engine the council would be to blame and not the Fire and Police Committee. He had nothing against Mr. Hunt and didn't wish to injure him in any way, but he was only doing his duty as a member of the committee.

The Deputy Reeve said he gave the firemen credit for doing well. When Mr. Hunt said there was water in the gauge at the first test he said what was not so. When he saw that the water was so low he made himself scarce. Had he known that it would have taken so long to get water he would have given a general alarm. There was no doubt in his mind that when the boiler was leaking at the mill fire it was caused by the water being allowed to run down low. At the recent test, it took 11 minutes to raise steam. It was really sickening to see Mr. Hunt and his son trying to pry the engine over with the valves closed and the water unable to get away. He expected to see him get hurt and he did receive a slight wound. It was a miracle to him that there was not an explosion. When a hole was being cut in the ice he noticed Mr. Hunt look at the gauge and the water was not to be seen there. If the U.S. examiners, who granted Mr. Hunt his papers, knew of his doings, he certainly could not have them renewed. He would not be entrusted with the humblest position. Capitalists are more careful of their property than some of the council are of the lives and property of the people they are elected to represent. The committee didn't expect the matter to pass as recommended but they wished to place the matter in its true light. He considered that Mr. Hunt was morally guilty of manslaughter, as he did all he could to cause an explosion and nothing to prevent

The Mayor stated that he would vote yea, as he was opposed to the report going back so far. If the report had only dealt with the test on the dock and subsequent times he would have voted for the adoption of the report as presented.

Mr. Wilson said no member would pledge himself to vote for retaining the engineer if he didn't do his duty. He did not think Mr. Hunt was as much to blame at the mill fire as the Chief.

On motion the third clause of the report was adopted.

On motion of Messrs. Pulford and Morin, the report was adopted as amended.

The yeas and nays on the final adoption of the report were called for which the following was the standing: Yeas Pulford, Green, Morin, Auld, Bastien, Wilson, and the Mayor 7. Nays Florey and Middleditch 2.

Mr. Heard declined to vote as the report, as amended, did not meet his views.

Mr. Florey insisted that Mr. Heard should vote, and the Mayor said by the rules of order, a member must vote. Mr. Heard then voted yea.

Mr. Green presented the report of the Building and Cemetery Committee, recommending the payment of the accounts of H. Cote, hauling coal, 50 cents; J. B. Fillion, putting in glass, 60 cents.

Mr. Morin thought the charge for hauling coal was excessive. He said a person could get a ton of coal hauled to his residence for 40 cents and therefore the 50 cents charged for hauling about a quarter of a ton was too much.

The item referred to, was struck out, and the report was adopted.

The Reeve presented the report of the Finance Committee, stating that they had examined the Auditors' report and they found the same correct. They therefore recommended that the same be received and fyled and the abstract Accounts were read from John Gauen, reeling and hanging hose, 50 cts.; W. K. Wright, hauling fire engine to dock and back 50 cts.; from H. Cote, hauling coal 50 cts.; from Geo. Stephenson, drum, $90, and John Lowe, interest on note, $10.

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Florey, the accounts of J. Gauen, H. Cote and W. K. Wright, were referred to the Fire and Police Committee.

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Heard, the petition of Bernard Finucan was referred to the Health and Charity Committee, and the account of G. Stephenson was referred to the Building and Cemetery Committee.

The Clerk having arrived, the minutes of the last regular meeting were read, and on motion of Messrs. Florey and Pulford, adopted. The minutes of the special meeting were laid over, not being written up.

On motion, the collector was permitted to address the council.

J. G. Kolfage stated that he had collected $10,633 and had still over $400 to collect and therefore he asked for an extension of time. This would be the last extension, as he did not propose to take promises any more.

On motion of Mr. Florey and the Deputy Reeve, the collector's time was extended to the next regular meeting.

On motion of the Deputy Reeve, J. W. Stokes was permitted to address the council.

Mr. Stokes stated that he was about purchasing an 8 acre lot on the gravel road, in town, from Capt. John Duncanson and he asked permission to build a slaughter house thereon. He exhibited plans and specifications of the buildings he proposed erecting and explained how he intended laying out the same. He said there was scarcely any family in town that would not be liable for prosecution, and he was himself liable to be fined for slaughtering in town.

Mr. Morin asked if the council had the power to grant the desire of Mr. Stokes.

The Reeve said there was a town by-law prohibiting it and he doubted if the council could grant the request if the by-law able to get [illegible] He expected to see him get hurt and he did receive a slight wound. It was a miracle to him that there was not an explosion. When a hole was being cut in the ice he noticed Mr. Hunt look at the gauge and the water was not to be seen there. If the U.S. examiners, who granted Mr. Hunt his papers, knew of his doings, he certainly could not have them renewed. He would not be entrusted with the humblest position. Capitalists are more careful of their property than some of the council are of the lives and property of the people they are elected to represent. The committee didn't expect the matter to pass as recommended but they wished to place the matter in its true light. He considered that Mr. Hunt was morally guilty of manslaughter, as he did all he could to cause an explosion and nothing to prevent one. He would not have accepted $10,000 to have stood on the dock near the engine at the time the water was so low. The engine is too precious to be destroyed. The town is paying for what they don't get. They are paying for fire protection and they don't get it. At the time of the March fire, if there had been a strong wind from the west or south-west a disastrous fire would have been the result. It is very common for the engineer, when things go wrong, to blame the committee when he is himself at fault. The engineer allows the engine to "run away" when starting and therefore causes the engine jump about on the dock until the people were scared away. He is often afraid of the dock falling in. The engineer should have a pail always on hand when the engine is out. The town should not suffer by keeping an inefficient man. He was in favor of having the affair thoroughly sifted, and let the blame fall on the person entitled to the censure. He was sorry for Mr. Hunt's incapacity which is owing to his getting old and nervous and his failing eyesight. He had nothing against Mr. Hunt, he had employed him as engineer and had recommended him to others, but could do so no more. In answer to a question from the Mayor, he said the reason for the alarm was to test the efficiency of the engineer and engine and it rules of order, a member must vote. Mr. Heard then voted yea.

Mr. Green presented the report of the Building and Cemetery Committee, recommending the payment of the accounts of H. Cote, hauling coal, 50 cents; J. B. Fillion, putting in glass, 60 cents.

Mr. Morin thought the charge for hauling coal was excessive. He said a person could get a ton of coal hauled to his residence for 40 cents and therefore the 50 cents charged for hauling about a quarter of a ton was too much.

The item referred to was struck out, and the report was adopted.

The Reeve presented the report of the Finance Committee, stating that they had examined the Auditors' report and they found the same correct. They therefore recommended that the same be received and fyled and the abstract published, also that the warrants be passed to J. H. Alexander, $10, and Thomas J. Leggett, $10, services as Auditors. They also recommended the payment of the following accounts: J. B. Fillion, glass and glazing, 60 cts.; W. K. Wright, hauling engine, 50 cts.; J. Gauen, hanging hose 50 cts.; W. S. Falls, copying cemetery map and material for same, $5.

Moved by the Reeve and Mr. Green, that the report be adopted. Carried.

The Deputy Reeve gave notice of a motion for the amending of the law respecting the slaughtering of animals in the corporation, pending the report of the committee.

The Reeve brought up the question of having orders for the chairman of the different committees, and also receipts for the Treasurer, as suggested by the Mayor.

On motion of the Reeve and Deputy Reeve, the matter was referred to the Mayor and the chairman of the different committees, with power to act.

The Deputy Reeve gave notice of a By-law to regulate the price of liquor licenses.

On motion, council adjourned.

ANDERDON COUNCIL.

Saturday, March 6th.

Council met pursuant to adjournment, present, the Deputy Reeve and Council-

Mr. Morin asked if the council had the power to grant the desire of Mr. Stokes.

The Reeve said there was a town by-law prohibiting it and he doubted if the council could grant the request if the by-law was amended, as the Board of Health by-law, as provided by statute, would prohibit it. If the council granted the privilege to one all others would have the same.

The clerk read the statutes to show that the matter rests with the council.

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Morin, the matter was referred to the Health and Charity Committee and the Board of Health combined.

Mr. Florey presented the report of the Fire and Police Committee, as follows:

1st. Having had a consultation with the Fire Company we find that they want a salary of ten dollars each, for twenty men per annum, together with six rubber suits, at a cost of say [illegible] to be used by the branchmen. After giving the matter due consideration from the present state of our finances we have concluded to recommend that they be paid one hundred dollars, on the 1st day of December next, to be distributed as they may think proper, for and in consideration of which they agree to do the work required in the proper care of the hose and that they do their duty according to their printed by-laws. We also recommend that the rubber suits be dispensed with for this year.

2nd. After what occurred at our last meeting on the reading of our report and its rejection, we deem it necessary on behalf of the ratepayers and in vindication of ourselves to state our reasons for the so-called censure of the engineer. Now it is a well-known fact that the engine has not been worked properly since the present engineer has had the management. At the fire of the steambarge George A. Marsh, on the 31st May, [illegible], steam was not up for ten or fifteen minutes after arriving on the dock. At the Sinclair fire it took over half an hour before the engine was in working order. At the mill fire you may say that the engine was useless owing no doubt to the inefficiency of the engineer. At the practice on Monday, 22nd of Feb., it was twenty-four minutes before water was thrown, and even then we expected to see the engineer get hurt as he completely lost his presence of mind, as he closed the valves when they should have been opened, and allowed the water to become so low that it was a wonder there was not an explosion, as there was no water in the glass gauge for five minutes. Your committee is of the opinion that if Mr. Hunt ever knew anything about the management of a fire engine he is now too old and nervous to be depended on in case of emergency. It is the duty of this council to secure the greatest efficiency in connection with the working of the engine. We have nothing personally against Mr. Hunt, but for some reason that gentleman has been most unfortunate in handling the engine. Therefore, in the interest of the public, we recommend that a change be made.

3rd. We recommend the payment of the following accounts:—

d recommended him to others, but could do so no more. In answer to a question from the Mayor, he said the reason for the alarm was to test the efficiency of the engineer and engine and it would not be right to prompt him. While Mr. Hunt was prying over the fly-wheel, he accidentally turned the valve, which started the engine and he saw him close it, which again stopped the engine, as the water could not get away. He said that the council and not Hunt will be responsible in the future if anything serious occurs, as the committee has done their duty by bringing the matter before the council.

Mr. Bastien understood that the engine at the late practice gave good satisfaction. He expected this report six months ago. It was Mr. Hunt who was not wanted, and not the engine that did not work. He moved that the $100 be changed to $200 and that the rubber suits be included, also that the part referring to the engineer be struck out. No seconder.

The Deputy Reeve said that Mr. Bastien's remarks about the engine giving satisfaction applied to himself only. The committee thought that no more than $100 could be paid. No other town of the size of Amherstburg paid its fire brigade.

The Mayor thought the committee had recommended as much as the town could afford. The town was very much in debt and interest would have to be paid until the debt is liquidated.

Mr. Florey said Mr. Bastien had been notified to attend the meeting of the committee, but he did not put in an appearance. If he anticipated the purport of the report he at least should have attended and given his opinion.

Mr. Green thought $100 was all that the council could afford to pay. If the council think, next year, that more can be afforded, then let them raise their pay. Mr. Hunt should, at least, have credit for what good he has done.

Mr. Morin said the engine seems to be rather unfortunate. At the Bruce House fire, water was not thrown for 20 minutes. Sometimes there is not enough water and sometimes too much.

Mr. Wilson thought the council should not deal with the late fires. He thought that the recent tests were satisfactory. He would vote for the keeping of Mr. Hunt as engineer at present.

utes. Your committee is of the opinion that if Mr. Hunt ever knew anything about the management of a fire engine he is now too old and nervous to be depended on in case of emergency. It is the duty of this council to secure the greatest efficiency in connection with the working of the engine. We have nothing personally against Mr. Hunt, but for some reason that gentleman has been most unfortunate in handling the engine. Therefore, in the interest of the public, we recommend that a change be made.

3rd. We recommend the payment of the following accounts:—

W. K. Wright	13
John Gasco hanging and reeling hose	50

Moved by Mr. Florey, seconded by the Deputy Reeve, that the report be received and adopted and the accounts therein referred to the Finance Committee.

On motion of Mr. Morin and the Deputy Reeve, Mr. Hunt, the engineer, was permitted to address the council.

W. G. Hunt said he had not much to say. He considered that the engine did her duty at the Sinclair fire, and as far as the test was concerned any person who said there was no water in the glass told what was untrue. He laid down the keys on the Mayor's table and told His Worship to take charge of the engine and he would pay half the cost connected with an examination by a competent engineer, if the engine was not found to be in first class order.

Deputy-Reeve—We don't complain of the engine but of the management.

Mr. Heard wanted the committee to report on the test of Saturday, the 27th ult.

The Mayor said he had notified the different members of the committee that a test was to be made that evening and if the news reached the firemen it was not through him. As far as the Sinclair fire was concerned, he had thought it did take a long time for the engine to throw water, probably because he was interested.

Mr. Green said he was present at the late test and he thought everything worked satisfactory.

Mr. Heard didn't think the firemen were previously told anything of the alarm, and even if they did he thought the firemen did good work, and should get credit.

Mr. Florey wished the members speaking on the matter would confine themsel- [illegible] what good he has done.

Mr. Morin said the engine seems to be rather unfortunate. At the Bruce House fire, water was not thrown for 20 minutes. Sometimes there is not enough water and sometimes too much.

Mr. Wilson thought the council should not deal with the late fires. He thought that the recent tests were satisfactory. He would vote for the keeping of Mr. Hunt as engineer, at present.

The Reeve stated that the last test was an improvement on the former one. He was in favor of the $100 grant and let those who do the work get the pay. He did not agree with some parts of the report, however.

Mr. Heard moved that the firemen be granted $160 and the suits.—No seconder.

Moved, in amendment, by Mr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Green, that the report be taken up clause by clause.—Carried.

Mr. Florey maintained that a report could not be taken up clause by clause unless the council go into committee of the whole.

His Worship said the motion was carried.

Moved by the Reeve and Mr. Green, that the first clause be adopted.

Moved, in amendment, by Messrs. Pulford and Morin, that the salary be fixed at $150, and let them purchase their own suits.—Amendment lost and motion carried.

Moved by Messrs. Pulford and Bastion, that the clause relating to the engineer be struck out.

Moved, in amendment, by the Reeve and Mr. Wilson, that the last sentence be struck out.

The Reeve thought that part of the report contained a great deal of truth, and he thought that the late discussion and tests had had a good effect on Mr. Hunt, who was now trying to do his duty, and was doing better.

Amendment to the amendment lost—Messrs. Green, Wilson Auld voting for it, and Messrs. Pulford, Morin, Bastion, Heard, Florey and Middleditch against.

Amendment was then carried on the following vote:—Yeas—Pulford, Bastion, Morin, Green, Heard, Wilson—6. Nays—Auld, Middleditch and Florey—3.

AMHERSTBURG COUNCIL.

Monday, May 11th.

Council met at 8.30 p.m.

Present, the Mayor in the chair, the Deputy Reeve and Councillors Florey, Anderson, West, Heard, Malott, Bastien, Bertrand, Green and Pulford.

The minutes of two previous meetings were read, and, on motion of Messrs. Florey and Heard, adopted.

Accounts were presented from Mathew Rankin, 2 days' work with road machine, on river front and Dalhousie street, $9; Johnston & Co., chemicals for steamer, $2.70; Louis Lemay, setting tire of horse cart, bolts, bands, hinges, &c., $5.15, and Nelson Owen, two days' work cleaning streets, $2.

The Clerk stated that he had been served with a writ unseating William McGuire from the office of Reeve of Amherstburg, and that a circular had been received from H. Atkin, agent for the Pennock road machine, enclosing a letter desiring the council to purchase one of these machines.

On motion of Messrs. Heard and Bertrand, the accounts of Louis Lemay and W. Johnston & Co, were referred to the Fire and Police Committee.

On Motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Florey, the account of Nelson Owen and the communication of H. Atkin were referred to the Board of Works.

Mr. Anderson introduced a by-law appointing a Chief of Police.

On motion of Messrs Anderson and Bertrand, by-law read a first time.

Council went into committee of the whole, Mr. Heard in the chair, and, on motion of Messrs. Anderson and Bertrand, by-law read a second time.

Moved by Messrs. Anderson and Bertrand, that the name of Wm. G. Hunt be filled in the by-law as Chief of Police.

The Deputy-Reeve said it was inconsistent to appoint Mr. Hunt. Some time ago he (Dep. Reeve) had introduced a motion requiring the janitor to ring the bell at the Hall so many times each day, which was not done, owing to that officer not having time. Therefore he couldn't have time to attend to the duties of Chief Constable.

Moved, in amendment, by the Deputy-Reeve and Mr. Florey, that W. Doran be appointed Chief of Police.—Lost.

Mr. Florey said it was impossible for the Chief Constable, who would also be chief engineer, to attend to all of his duties. If there was a row and a fire, he would either have to neglect the row or fire, or in case of a row at the hall, one must be neglected.

Mr. Anderson said there were only two clauses in which there could arise any difficulty, and these were provided for by stating that this officer perform the duties upon which said clauses touched, if practicable. If not practicable for this officer to serve summonses and orders issued by the Mayor, they would have to be given to a special constable. The present salary of Mr. Hunt as engineer and janitor was not sufficient for a man to live on.

Mr. West said it was heaping duties on Mr. Hunt. The hay scales were to be moved so that the janitor could take charge of them.

Citizens' and Norwich Union at 1.15 per cent. premium. They had examined the dock at the foot of Richmond street and found it in a good state of repair, and recommended that a new lease, for a term of ten years, at $10 per annum, be granted to C. Young & Co., said lease to begin at the expiration of the old lease. They had caused to be planted in the cemetery, 60 maple trees, had taken over the new fence built in the cemetery by J. Tomlinson as per contract and had received tenders for the removal of the hay scales, the lowest of which was that of Frank Dupuis, $57, and recommended that the same be accepted, also that the following accounts be paid: C. Young & Co., coal, $31.16; J. S. Lushington, 40 cents; J. Tomlinson, erecting fence, $20, and George Buckner, trees, $13.80, 25 per cent. of the last item being retained until October 1st, as surety that the trees all live.

Mr. Florey asked if there was not an arrangement made last year, by which trees that died would be replaced free of charge.

The Deputy Reeve stated that there was an agreement to that effect, but Mr. Buckner was not willing to keep said agreement, and he had nothing which could be attached; so the agreement was likely to fall through.

Mr. West said that the time had about expired for planting trees and there was nobody else to do it, and Mr. Buckner had thrown off 20 trees.

On motion of Messrs. West and Pulford, the report was adopted.

Mr. Bastien thought there was no hurry to remove the hay scales. It was not advisable to borrow money for this work; and moved, in amendment, seconded by Mr. Bertrand, that the clauses relative to the removal of the hay scales be struck out.

Amendment lost and motion for the adoption of the report carried.

The Deputy Reeve presented the report of the Board of Works, recommending the payment of the following accounts: John Daly, labor, $2.50; Nelson Owen, work on streets, $2, and Matthew Rankin, work on streets with road machine, $9. They also recommended that tenders be asked for pine and oak lumber for sidewalks.

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Florey, the report was adopted and the accounts referred to the Finance Committee.

The Mayor presented the report of the Finance Committee, recommending the payment of accounts: J. Daly, labor, $2.50; Nelson Owen, labor, $2; J. H. C. Leggatt, insurance on town hall, $86.20, and Matthew Rankin, work on streets, $9.

On motion of Messrs. Florey and Green, the report was adopted.

Mr. Anderson brought up the matter of the wheels of the fire apparatus and understood that it had been referred to the Fire and Police Committee.

Mr. Florey, chairman of the Fire and Police Committee, stated that the job of the tires of the hose cart wheels had been given to Louis Lemay, who had partly finished the work.

Mr. Anderson said he referred to the front wheels of the engine, which were badly out of repair.

Mr. Florey said he was not aware of it, and thought it was the duty of the engineer to re-was a row or a fire, he would either have to neglect the row or fire, or in case of a row at the hall, one must be neglected.

Mr. Anderson said there were only two clauses in which there could arise any difficulty, and these were provided for by stating that this officer perform the duties upon which said clauses touched, if practicable. If not practicable for this officer to serve summonses and orders issued by the Mayor, they would have to be given to a special constable. The present salary of Mr. Hunt as engineer and janitor was not sufficient for a man to live on.

Mr. West said it was heaping duties on Mr. Hunt. The hay scales were to be moved so that the janitor could take charge of them. His duties must all be in one place.

The Mayor stated that one of the duties of the janitor was to attend to the hay scales. He could not discharge the duties of chief constable, janitor and engineer. The constable has important duties. If the salary of the engineer and janitor were not sufficient to live on, he should get a proper salary. When summonses were to be served, he would be called away from his duties as engineer, one of which duties was that he be always at his post. The special constables were laborers working to gain a livelihood. If employed at $1 or $1.50 per day, he asked, would it be fair to take him away from his work to serve a summons for 25 cents. If the Mayor had to hunt up the special constables, the consequence would be, in many cases, summonses would not be served. Then, he asked, would it be fair for a man who had come in from the country with a load of hay to be weighed, to be obliged to wait until Mr. Hunt returned from serving a summons in the country. The peace of Amherstburg is now as good as it had been for years. He said he could not send Mr. Hunt to Sandwich with a prisoner, thus taking him away from the engine.

Mr. Anderson said it was not intended that Mr. Hunt attend to the hay scales. He took it for granted that since Mr. Hunt kept such good order around the hall, that he could keep good order around town. Amherstburg was second to none in the point of order at present. Mr. Hunt, with the time at his disposal, could keep as good order as any other man. He said the appointing of a constable was somewhat of an experiment. The duties of an engineer would come first and those of chief constable second. If it was found necessary to get another man, they could get a good man and pay him a good salary.

The Mayor was under the impression that one of the duties of the chief constable was to attend to the hay scales, and desired that the by-law be read.

The Clerk said it was one of the constable's duties.

Mr. West stated that it was the intention to make a tool of Mr. Hunt to defeat Mr. Dornan, and, if desirable, to appoint another man, to whom they would be willing to give a large salary.

The Mayor drew attention of the Council to the fact that the late chief constable also performed the duties of sanitary inspector. [illegible]

[illegible], 89.

On motion of Messrs. Florey and Green, the report was adopted.

Mr. Anderson brought up the matter of the wheels of the fire apparatus and understood that it had been referred to the Fire and Police Committee.

Mr. Florey, chairman of the Fire and Police Committee, stated that the job of the tires of the hose cart wheels had been given to Louis Lemay, who had partly finished the work.

Mr. Anderson said he referred to the front wheels of the engine, which were badly out of repair.

Mr. Florey said he was not aware of it, and thought it was the duty of the engineer to report to him and he would have it attended to.

The Mayor brought up the matter of widening the lower end of Gore street, and stated that he had suggested to Mr. Wigle that he grant a sufficient portion of his lot at the corner of Gore and Dalhousie streets, in order that the street be widened and straightened to the river, in consideration of the town granting him the old street which runs along the river at the foot of his lot.

Moved by the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Florey, that the matter be referred to the Board of Works.

Mr. Anderson was of the opinion that Gore street originally ran only to Dalhousie street, and that the street along the river had been given in lieu of the present street allowance to the river.

The Mayor explained how those streets had been laid out according to the old plans of the town, stating that Dalhousie extended to the river.

Mr. Anderson said Mr. Wigle was willing to give 18 inches of his lot, to the river, and he (Mr. Anderson) expressed himself in favor of the town purchasing a piece of land from Mr. Wigle, to widen the street further. He considered it mean to force Mr. Wigle to give up a piece of land which he had bought, and was of the opinion that the street along the river could not be made there, as it was not necessary for traffic.

Motion then carried.

The Mayor then spoke of the $25 claimed by Mr. Gott (which came before the Council some time ago) as damage to his wheat by the overflow of water, and which was referred to the Gravel Road Co., who agreed to pay half of the amount claimed, providing the town pay the other half.

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Green, the question was referred to the Finance Committee.

The Mayor introduced the question of celebrating the Queen's birthday.

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Florey, the Mayor was authorized to proclaim [illegible] as a public holiday for the town of Amherstburg.

The Deputy Reeve stated that he found that [illegible] of the Board of Works, while the by-law only provided for five. He had discovered that Mr. Maloney was not a member of that committee. [illegible] be heavy this year and we must have an inspector. A man could not be got, for $5 per month, and he (the Mayor) would not perform the duties of Inspector. He didn't think any of his colleagues felt disposed to devote all their time from day to day, acting as Inspector. He was of the opinion that the law allowed $1 per day, so it was a question of economy. The duties of this office will commence, according to law, on the 14th of May. As chairman of the Board of Health for 1885, he intended to discharge his duties. If he could resign his position as chairman of the Board of Health, without resigning his office of Mayor, he would at once tender his resignation unless he had proper co-workers, but it could not be done. They had always run the Board of Health as economically as possible.

Moved by the Deputy Reeve and Mr. West, [illegible]

The Deputy Reeve said he was not opposed to Mr. Hunt, but he was opposed to placing too many duties on him—He couldn't see where it would pay a special constable to take a prisoner to Sandwich at 10 cents per mile. Other tenders had been received for the offices of engineer and janitor at lower salaries than Mr. Hunt, but Mr. Hunt had been selected as he could devote his whole time to the duties and always be at the hall, which he would not be, if appointed chief constable.

Mr. Green was of the opinion that the services of Chief of Police could be dispensed with, since it was the desire of the Council to be economical.

Moved, in amendment, by the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Green, that the blanks of the by-law be not filled in—do without a constable.

Amendment then put, and lost.

Mr. Anderson thought Mr. Hunt was quick to catch on. He might be given the duties of Sanitary Inspector and if he could not perform them he would not accept them.

Mr. Florey said that a short time ago Mr. Anderson had said that we did not need a a Chief of Police.

Mr. Anderson—"You're wrong."

Mr. Florey—"Some one else is to be appointed. There is something in the wind."

The Mayor was of the opinion that Mr. Anderson was either the mover or a supporter of a motion saying that a chief constable was no longer required.—The chief is also also a county constable. If no longer required, some time ago, he's no longer required now. He would hold up both hands for economy.

Mr. Green thought special constables were willing to serve summonses.

Mr. Anderson stated that he had not said the duties of chief constable were no longer required. He said that the duties could be discharged for $100, as well as they are discharged now.

Mr. Florey—"Mr. Anderson is very forgetful. I'm positive he made the statement. The other was an after consideration."

The motion appointing Mr. Hunt then carried.

An account from Darius Wigle for tile was referred to the Board of Works.

Accounts were read from W. S. Falls, Treasurer, for $10.14, discount on checks, express charges and other expenses, and an account from W. Cousins, asking a rebate on account of receipt for hay scales, $12.50, and were referred to Finance Committee.

A certificate from the Clerk of the Peace for $16 for selectors of Jurors was read and referred to Finance Committee.

Applications were read from John E. Proctor, and Thomas S. Barlow for the position of Engineer of the steam fire engine and electric light.

On motion of Messrs. Maloney and Smith, the application of Thos. S. Barlow was accepted and he was appointed to succeed Wm. G. Hunt, resigned.

An application was read from Joseph Morin, for the position of Chief of Police and Janitor.

The Mayor stated that Wm. McVety, who had been acting as Chief and Janitor, wished to resume the work, and endeavor to discharge all the duties properly. After consulting the members of the Council, he (the Mayor) had decided to give him charge again from the 1st of November.

Echo Nov.13, 1885

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Pulford, the report was adopted.

Mr. Florey presented the following report of the Fire and Police Committee :—

We recommend that the resignation of W. G. Hunt as Chief of Police be accepted. We would also recommend that the application of No. 1 Lambert Fire Co., for certificates as members of said Fire Co., be granted at any time to suit their convenience. On examination of the applications of W. Dornan and George L. Middleton, for the position of Chief of Police, we find that neither of them has stated the amount of salary required. We therefore recommend that the Clerk be authorized to advertise for a man to act as Chief of Police, to build and repair sidewalks and to do any other work required to be done, and to devote all his time to the interests of the town, tenders to be received up to, and including, Monday, the 23rd day of November.

Messrs. Florey and Green moved the adoption of the report.

Messrs. Bastien and Anderson thought as winter was coming on, it would not be advisable to engage a man, at present, to repair sidewalks, &c., as nothing could be done in that line until spring, but Messrs. Florey and Green expressed the opinion that numerous jobs could be done during the winter months, which would save expense and become matters of great convenience.

Mr. West thought the scheme proposed by the committee would not work, as policemen were generally in uniform and they would not care to put on their old clothes in order to mend sidewalks, besides, men who accept such positions are generally too lazy to do any real work.

Mr. Green agreed with Mr. West's remarks.

The Reeve thought if there was any town in Canada which needed police protection, it was Amherstburg, as he had heard that women were sometimes insulted on our streets, when out after dark. He also thought the Chief of Police could do some good work in looking after the hotels, and seeing that they were always closed at the proper hour.

The Deputy Reeve thought the scheme proposed by the committee would be a good thing, as he frequently found it a difficult task to procure men for such a purpose, when they were required.

Echo Nov.13, 188

On motion of the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Fulford, the report was adopted.

Mr. Florey presented the following report of the Fire and Police Committee:—

We recommend that the resignation of W. G. Hunt as Chief of Police be accepted. We would also recommend that the applications of No. 1 Lambert Fire Co., for certificates as members of said Fire Co., be granted at any time to suit their convenience. On examination of the applications of W. Dorman and George L. Middleton, for the position of Chief of Police, we find that neither of them has stated the amount of salary required. We therefore recommend that the Clerk be authorized to advertise for a man to act as Chief of Police, to build and repair sidewalks and to do any other work required to be done, and to devote all his time to the interests of the town, tenders to be received up to, and including, Monday, the 23rd day of November.

Messrs. Florey and Green moved the adoption of the report.

Messrs. Hasten and Anderson thought as winter was coming on, it would not be advisable to engage a man at present, to repair sidewalks, &c., as nothing could be done in that line until spring, but Messrs. Florey and Green expressed the opinion that numerous jobs could be done during the winter months, which would save expense and become matters of great convenience.

Mr. West thought the scheme proposed by the committee would not work, as policemen were generally in uniform and they would not care to put on their old clothes in order to mend sidewalks, besides, men who accept such positions are generally too lazy to do any real work.

Mr. Green agreed with Mr. West's remarks.

The Reeve thought if there was any town in Canada which needed police protection, it was Amherstburg, as he had heard that women were sometimes insulted on our streets, when out after dark. He also thought the Chief of Police could do some good work in looking after the hotels, and seeing that they were always closed at the proper hour.

The Deputy Reeve thought the scheme proposed by the committee would be a good thing, as he frequently found it a difficult task to procure men for such a purpose, when they were required.

[illegible] would lay out the man's work—and see that it was done. The building was a credit to the town and should be kept in good clean condition. The janitor could not get it ready in a few minutes.

The Mayor could not get it through him where the benefit came in. A man would need help to handle hose. The same duties could be defined for the engineer as for engineer and janitor. He could get a man that would take the janitorship and hay scales for $150 near by. Mr. Hunt was the man he referred to. He was near by. The engineer could not reel the hose alone. The matter of running an engine and handling hose were very separate. If the engineer attended to his engine he would have his hands full. If they paid an engineer as much as $1,000, the firemen would have their duties still to perform. The engineer could not do it all. But they could not do their duties in the past, as we had no hosetower. The Windsor fire department had been re-organized for the reason that they could not run it without paying salaries. The firemen expected some remuneration. They could not lose their time practicing twice a month. If a fire occurred when an entertainment was going on, the engineer would have to leave the hall and go with the engine and leave the hall open. He might be called away in day time when wanted at the hay scales. They would not be a success jointly.

Mr. Middleditch—Mr. Anderson claimed that the engine was foul and would not work, and danced on the dock. He (Anderson) did not know what ailed it. He did not know what he was talking about. He had asked the consult

G FIRE . . . A big fire in town way back in 1910 was the son for our present chief's in-st in becoming a fireman . . In uary of that year the Anglo-erican Hotel (Tin House) took in below zero weather and a y fire it was too—when the e was finally brought under trol there was nothing left but foundation—one of the young who volunteered to help the men that evening was John R. nilton and that first taste of ke defnitely turned him into reman . . . The Tin House was called because the exterior of building was covered with two- corrugated tin sheets—it's tion was at the corner of Aps- and Richmond Streets on the of the present public library It was quite a place—the type made people become in favor prohibition . . . But back to the ous fire—the alarm came in at e o'clock in the morning and y piece of equipment in town brought to fight the fire . . . local department was totally lequate to handle the situation volunteers were called for and is where Mr. Hamilton fitted the picture . . . He told us lton Pulford and I manned one and hose and worked the rest he night" . . . Not only did the House become a memory that y morning but also the resi-ce of Dr. Clark—a veterinary hose house and barn were h of the hotel on the property occupied by the Green Lan- Restaurant and a bowling y between Dr. Clark's house the Tin House . . . This was of the worst fires in the his- of this town—probably the gest since the burning of Old Malden when the British cuated the fort and let the ericans take over . . .

THE AMHERSTBURG FIRE DEPARTMENT PAST AND PRESENT

Many people have wondered about the origins of the Amherstburg Fire Department, and what some of the long ago fire fighters looked like, how it has evolved to its present state.

Research for this task is an ongoing venture, as a great deal of information is available, but yet to be gleaned. That which has been compiled comes from our local paper "The Amherstburg Echo" (which boasts a great deal of history of its own) As well as the "Marsh Collection Society" both of which I would like to acknowledge in advance, particularly Eleanor Gignac Warren, whom without her help this would not have been possible.

Randy Sinasac.

DEPARTMENT FORMATION

Though the Amherstburg Echo has been around for many years, often times the information written concerning the fire department was limited to a notation of who the fire fighters of the town were, or whose house burned down the night before. Specific facts are vague, yet plausible, when researched thoroughly. The earliest listing of names of people who were "members" of the No.1 Fire Company is dated February 14, 1841. The list read as follows: "George Bullock, Captain, Richard Hadwick, Lieutenant, Alexander Wagner, Secretary, George Thomson, Treasurer, Richard Watson, Branchman, Simon Bertrand, Branchman, James Findley, Branchman. Alexander Jones, Branchman, John Hamilton, Branchman, Antoine Meloche, Branchman, Thomas Horsman, Branchman, James Love, Branchman, George Watson, Branchman, Rowland Wingfield, Branchman, Antoine Racicot, Branchman, William L. Shultz, Branchman, Henry Middleditch, Branchman, John Turk, Branchman, Joseph Girardin, Branchman, Felix Drouillard, Branchman, Israel Beneteau, Branchman, James Brown, Branchman, Charles G. Fortier, Branchman, Thomas Nicholson, Branchman, Christopher Kenden, Branchman, George Baker, Branchman.

Back in 1841, Amherstburg did not have what one might call an "official" fire department. The members of the No.1 Fire Company were considered more to be members of a "social club", and were consistent with all fire brigades of that timeframe, throughout North America. The purpose of this company was not only to put out fires, but to also arrange local functions, such as dances and charity bazaars. In 1870, the No.1 Fire Company, also referred to as the Fire Brigade, had a new set of members. A picture, taken of them in 1870 or 1871 (the exact year is up for debate), dressed in their new blue and white uniforms, along with the list of names of the members, appear on the web page.

On March 14, 1879, the Amherstburq Echo wrote a 10 paragraph story on the official recognition of the Amherstburg Fire Company No.l. During a meeting, held in what was called the Firemen's Hall on Dalhousie Street, the officiating took place. Several citizens had signed a petition requesting the proper organization of "a fire company for better protection against fire". A Mr. Lauler was the chief advocate for this proposal, and with his twelve years of experience in Strathroy in connection with both hand and steam fire engines, serving a considerable portion of that time as Chief of the fire brigade there, he was made Captain of the new Amherstburq Fire Co. No.l,, which, by the way, was an amendment of a Mr. J.H. Legget and a Mr. John Harriss to call it Lafayette No.l. A committee to draft by-laws for this new company was made, and date for practice sessions for all fire company members was established.

The fire department, even after official recognition, underwent many changes. Re-organization of officials within the department was constant. In 1882, the Echo, dated January 13, announced that a new fire company had been established. A list of names of the members can be found at the end of this history paper. On this date, it was also decided to call the steam fire engine the "Walter Lambert", in honor of the late Mayor Lambert. On March 28, 1919, another re-organization took place. At this time, a man by the name of John Hamilton was the Captain in charge, having replaced Samuel L. Lauler, the former Chief. The paragraph read as follows:

> "The activities of Capt. John R. Hamilton has resulted in the re-organization of the local fire brigade, and the appointment of men who will no doubt take a more active interest in the fighting of the few fires that Amherstburg has, but whose work at these times is just as necessary as if fires were of a more serious nature. In addition to these new appointments, the brigade of 12 men is divided equally among the three wards, with a captain over each, whose duty it is to see that the hose carts are kept adequately supplied with efficient hose, and other fire fighting apparatus properly looked after. This ought to result in a greater efficiency all round, and give the people of the town more confidence in their fire department. A roll will be called after each fire, and absentees reported to the council."

There was a very good reason for this re-organization. At this time, there were a series of fires that had taken place in town. Another article from the Echo, bearing the same date reads that it seemed a "fire bug" was operating throughout the vacant houses in town. It continues that this was "the second fire of that nature, it being within 10 days of another...". The article ends, "It is plain to see that it is the work of an incendiary." At the same time, yet another article from the Echo bearing the exact same date reads as follows: "When submitting the report of the Fire and Light Committee, Mr. Denike explained that the Deslippe account for drying hose was contracted for the No.1 hose, which, when the R.C. School fire broke out, was unreeled at Wm. Finlay's, and was being used by him. He thought the account should be paid in full, and a portion charged back to Mr. Finlay."

The article continues "Mr. Denike said that the Fire Brigade was at loose ends regarding the appointing of firemen. He said the firemen should be divided into three wards, with a captain over each, responsible for each hose reel... Moved by Mr. Denike, seconded by Mr. Laramie, that none of the fire fighting apparatus be taken out of the hose houses except for fire purposes. On three different occasions lately, hose was taken for private purposes, and the town had to pay for drying and putting it back. Motion put, and carried."

So it seems, from the reading of these articles, that some of the towns people were taking it upon themselves to make use of the fire hoses whenever they pleased, and letting the town pick up the expense of having them dried and put back into their hose houses. Back then, the hoses; were on three different streets, and the water was brought to the fire, unlike now, where the water supply is on the street and the hoses, are brought to the fire. Due to the lack of "action" to correct this situation, reorganization took place, with the hope that with the rules spelled out and trusted people put into positions of responsibility, the townspeople would come to rely on, and most importantly, respect their local fire department.

EQUIPMENT

The equipment of the days, prior to 1800, consisted mainly of a ladder and a bucket, which was the custom for houses to each own and keep on their premises. The ladder had to be long enough to reach the roof since chimney and roof fires were the most common at that time. It is said that as early as 1779 there was a two-handed pump in operation to protect the Fort Malden buildings. It was originally the property of the British government, and placed at the Old Fort Malden when Imperial Troops were garrisoned there. It was equipped with leather hoses and brass nozzles. The soldiers were generally expected to assist in putting out any fires with the use of this pump. Early hand-pumped fire engines did not suction their own water.. "Cisterns" were kept filled with water, which was taken from the river, by being passed in buckets from man to man, extending from the river to the scene of the fire, As the town grew, the "pass the bucket" idea changed to the idea of these cisterns being kept filled by rain water, or, during draughts, water-carts hauling water from the river to the cistern.

From 1840 on, the two fire companies or "social clubs", as they really were, were equipped at their own expense with hats, and a hand-powered fire engine that required 12 men to operate it at full power.

In 1875, the municipality took charge of the company, and fitted it with a large, horse-drawn steam powered fire engine that could suction its own water and throw it over the buildings. This engine was kept filled by a steam pump located at the foot of Rankin Avenue. The engine was purchased second-hand from the city of Detroit.

The next recollection of a change in fire fighting equipment is a comment made by Chief Hamilton at his party for 25 years of service as the Fire Chief. He stated that when he joined the fire department 32 years ago (in 1910), "We had only a couple of hand reels, and they were not very much use as fire fighting equipment."

In 1939, it is recorded that the Amherstburg Fire Department was in ownership of a hook and ladder truck. However, they decided that a rescue truck might come in handy. So a group of fire fighters, knowing that there was no money in the town's budget to purchase a rescue truck, decided to build one from scratch. The men had to lift the rather ancient vintage sedan they had purchased, and with a lot of strenuous shifting, maneuvered it through the fire station door. They tore the car apart, clipped the top off, and proceeded to construct the perfect rescue truck. They even sprayed it with three coats of vermillion paint with the use of vacuum cleaner attachments. Once finished, everything was set to roll the car out for all of Amherstburg to admire. Just one problem. There was an L shaped corner that was needed to get around. The fire hall door was to narrow too drive the truck out, and the truck was now too heavy to lift out. So there it was. A nice new truck and no way to get it out of the fire hall. At the time the truck was built, it was presumed that the town council would vote them enough money to widen the door in time for the grand presentation. It is safe to presume that the door was eventually widened because a photo, taken approximately 1949-50, shows this hand-made rescue truck, along with two other Fire Department vehicles, outside of the old Town Hall.

Other changes in the equipment saw the transition from old "Petch" coats, to modern bunker gear, old style "smoke eater" firefighters, to mandatory use of self contained breathing apparatus, discontinued riding on the outside of the apparatus, and a myriad of other changes consistent with the industry standard.

Currently, the Amherstburg Fire Department is in possession of custom made, apparatus and equipment to service the town's needs.

FIRES

There have been several fires in the town of Amherstburg over the years, but there are two that seem to stand out in the "minds" of the newspaper field. The first was what is now known as "The Great Conflagration of 1875". It took place on Murray Street, between Ramsey and Dalhousie Streets. At that time, the Amherstburg Echo reported that there was a total of $25 000 worth of damage sustained, and only $13 000 (1875 dollars) was covered by insurance.

It was about half past 2 o'clock on a Sunday morning when an alarm was sounded. A man by the name of J.H. Crawley was the first witness of the beginnings of this disaster, and sounded the alarm. A large two story building, occupied by a Mr. Gilbert Lafferty was engulfed in flames, and soon began to consume the neighboring buildings, which housed general stores. Next, it leapt across the street to the tailor shop. It also burned the News Store, owned by a Mr. John Brown. Next came the local barber shop, the Prince Albert Hotel, the butcher's stalls, owned by a Mr. C. Kemp, the stores owned by Mr. Joseph Reaume, who was a harness-maker, and the grocery store, owned by Mr. Louis Cadaret. Bungey's Hotel caught fire, along with Smith's barber ship, two vacant stores, and two barns.

A building occupied by Conroy & Co. soon caught fire, and fell in, which then transferred the flames to a restaurant and fruit store, and on to a brick hardware store owned by Mr. J.G. Kolfage. The residence of John R. Park sr. was also severely damaged.

The other major fire took place on the afternoon of Tuesday, November 11, 1887, on the corners of Ramsey and Richmond Street, spreading to the north side of Murray Street. The fire began on the inside of the south-west corner of a store owned by a Mr. G.T. Florey. Before anyone could attempt to go in the store for the purpose of removing goods, it was in a blaze. The flames caught on to two small cans of gun powder, and exploded. It blew out the plate glass windows, and cut the heads of several people who were about to enter the building. The breeze spread the flames in all directions, catching the brick-lined building of Balfour & Auld, and the residence of James Hamilton, as well as the large roller rink. Flying cinders hit the roofs of a Mrs. Wendell's house, the Bruce Block, the Echo office, Gasco's Grocery, Reaume's harness shop, as well as some houses as far as Dalhousie and Gore Streets. There was slight. damage to Mr. C.M.S. Thomas' drug store. Other houses sustained water damage, peeled paint due to heat, and removal of doors, barns, fences and any outside objects that could feed the fire. The total loss in this fire was $12 000, with insurance covering $6 850 (1887 dollars).

Some of the recent large dollar loss fires of the modern day department include the "Hearn" warehouse fire on "Thomas" Rd. as well as the "Bellwood" poultry processing plant fire, both in 1999 and both with losses that ran to the millions of dollars.

CHIEFS OF THE AMHERSTBURG FIRE DEPARTMENT

There have been at least three Chiefs in the history of this department, however with additional research, a forth was found. At times he was referred to as a Captain, but towards the end of his charge of the department, he is spoken of with the title "Chief". So officially the list reads: Chiefs Samuel Lauler, J.R. Hamilton, Melvin Mailloux, and Chief Richard Murray. The exact number of years Mr. Lauler served as Chief is not quite clear; however Mr. Hamilton served for 50 years, Mr. Mailloux for 24 years, and at time of writing Mr. Murray 14 years. The amalgamation of the former Anderdon and Malden departments saw the addition of "district Chiefs" Graham Rose (Malden) and Noel Meloche (Anderdon). District Chief Rose has since retired, but District Chief Meloche is still active with the department at time of writing. R.W. Sinasac is currently the Deputy Chief of the Amherstburg Fire Department.

REQUIREMENTS & TRAINING

The requirements to become a fire fighter in the early days were as follows: be fit and able in body and mind, be known to be of good spirit, and be willing to defend the town and neighbors' property from the threat of destruction by fire. Since the beginnings of the fire department consisted mostly of community work, such as fundraising, church bazaars and town festivals, it helped to be well known within the town.

It is recorded that during the late 1870's and 1880's the Mayor would call the fire brigade out for "practice runs", which usually took place at 7 p.m. The engine was pulled out, the fire lighted and the team of horses, owned by a Mr. W.K Wright, hooked to the steam engine and run down to the Gore Street dock. The Amherstburg Echo, of March 5, 1886 reports, "45 lbs. of steam was raised in 9 minutes from the time the fire was lighted, and two streams of water were thrown through two lengths of hose in less than ten minutes. The engine did her part in good shape this time. Engineer Hunt had everything in good condition for a trial, and if everything would always work as well, there should be no fear of alarm by any insurance association."

By 1939, Fire Chief J.R. Hamilton had the department practicing 16 times a year. In the 80's under Fire Chief Mel Mailloux, the Amherstburg Echo, dated May 19, 1982 shows that the department had increased the practice drills to two times per month and that "all the men were expected to attend. There were only two reasons for missing a drill: a death in the family, or their own illness." The pay at that time (an honorarium) was 500.00 per year. The fire fighters added a new piece of apparatus by putting together their own rescue vehicle, adding it to the present two pumpers, and a ladder truck.

After Chief Richard Murray's' appointment to his position,(the first fulltime Chief of the department) the fire fighters practiced once a week, on Thursday's and took courses on various life-saving methods such as CPR and basic first aid. They also train constantly with all the various pieces of equipment they may possibly use during a fire. In an interview with Chief Murray at that time he stated that when a person first approaches the department with their desire to join the volunteer team, they must take an aptitude test, and be closely supervised and trained by a veteran fire fighter. They are put on probation for one year, and observed to see if there are any signs of claustrophobia, vertigo, inability to control the fire hoses, or carry a fellow fire fighter out of a dangerous situation, or an inability to think quickly and clearly in a stressful situation. If after one year they still have the desire to be a firefighter, and they have faired well in all areas, they become part of the Amherstburg Fire Department.

The late 80s and early 90s see some further changes to the department, as the interview with Chief Murray continues. "80-90% of the fire departments in Ontario are run on a volunteer basis. Our municipality just cannot afford to pay for fulltime firefighters. Fortunately, we always have had willing volunteers. There is a set amount of money that is paid to each firefighter, once a year, to cover personal costs. It is in no way a paying job. The breakdown of pay for firefighters are as follows: Deputy Chief-$1900.00 per year, Captain (of which there were 5 at that time) 1700.00 per year, Lieutentant-1600.00 per year, and last but not least, the very dedicated crew -1500.00 pre firefighter. All but 500.00 of the re-imbursement pay is taxable. The one person who considered fulltime and on the books so to speak is the Chief."

After Chief Murray's' appointment to his position, some further re-organization of the department took place. A comprehensive evaluation and review by the Chief, in consultation with the office of the Fire Marshal, saw the implementation of a "Master Fire Plan" which dealt with all aspects of the organization. Some of the major effects of that review saw changes in training, equipment, and apparatus with the emphasis on modernizing the department. A new station was built in 1993, and continues to meet the needs of the department as headquarters. More emphasis was placed on training, and a standardized Province wide curriculum was implemented, for training the firefighters.

The next major shake up of the department, was the amalgamation of the two neighboring communities, Malden and Anderdon townships, with the town of Amherstburg in 1998. This essentially saw the blending of three departments into one, to serve the previous "tri-community", as was the trend in the Province at the time. There were previous attempts at doing this, as early as in the 1970s, and the blending of the communities, although not with out bumps in the road, was done with relative ease after the commissioners order, primarily because of the close working relationship between the communities, and therefore the fire departments.

The departure from a completely volunteer department, for the most part, began with the hiring of Chief Murray fulltime; however a more complete departure from that type of Fire Department, happened after the amalgamation took place. This saw the recommendation and implementation of a Fulltime Deputy Chief, (writer) as well as the former Anderdon Township's department had 3 fulltime personnel. This firmly entrenched the present department into its present "composite" status. The department's description and functions as listed are consistent with these last changes, and see the department operating three stations, ten fire apparatus, ten captains, and three Chief Officers.

ADDITIONAL NOTES

As noted earlier, this is an ongoing work in progress, and additional information may be forthcoming. Some of the newspaper accounts have information which is puzzling to the writer, for example the title "Branchman" after an early list of the firefighters, (of which I could not find a definitive applicable definition). Use of additional photos is always welcome and appreciated. We certainly welcome any comments, or additional information which anyone can add. Most of the old photos are being added to the web page, however there are many to view at station #1 as well as the compiled newspaper accounts from which most of this is written.

TWENTY carpenters of St. Joseph De Levis, Que., left the other day for Gibraltar, Mich., to work at ship-building at $2 per day, under Mr. Marquis.

Toronto inaugurated services on the Grand Trunk. By 1859-60 there were several through routes across the Ontario peninsula (Figure 2.2). The Great Western had, in addition to its main line, a branch from London to Sarnia completed in 1858. Sarnia was also the western terminus of the Grand Trunk which reached the St Clair River from Toronto via Guelph and Stratford in 1859. A third line, the Buffalo and Lake Huron, opened in 1858 connected Buffalo with Goderich via Brantford, Paris and Stratford.

The Great Western connected with New York railways at the Suspension Bridge, Niagara Falls and by car ferries across the Detroit River with the Michigan Central. The Great Western was an early example of a classic "bridge line". In both name and function, the Grand Trunk lived up to its title, by operating a main line from Sarnia to Portland, Maine. With only limited American partners in Michigan, the Grand Trunk took active steps to build and acquire a network reaching across the state. A direct line from Port Huron to Detroit was opened in 1860 and two decades later, the Grand Trunk owned its own line into Chicago. The Buffalo gateway was reached in 1863 when through trains from that city to Detroit were operated in conjunction with the Buffalo & Lake Huron Railway. Somewhat surprisingly, the distance of this route via Paris and Stratford was slightly shorter than the Great Western's route (Table 2.4). The benefits of a route to Buffalo were reflected in the Grand Trunk's takeover of operations in 1864 and full merger in 1870.[25]

A second phase of trunk line promotion began in the late 1860s as the American and Canadian economies recovered from the aftermath of the Civil War. The Erie & Niagara Extension Railway was incorporated in 1868 to build a direct line from Fort Erie to Sandwich or Windsor. In 1869 the name was changed to the Canada Southern Railway and construction on a main line from Fort Erie to Amherstburg began. This line and the long branch from St. Thomas to Courtright on the St. Clair River were opened in 1873. The Erie & Ontario Railway (from Niagara-on-the-Lake to Fort Erie) was acquired in 1875 (Figure 2.7).[26]

The development of the Canada Southern prompted responses from the existing railways. Threatened by a loss of transit traffic, the Great Western built a new direct route, the Canada Air Line, from Fort Erie and Niagara Falls via St. Thomas to Glencoe (on the main London-Windsor line). The Grand Trunk retaliated by acquiring the International Bridge Co. (chartered in 1857) in 1872 and erecting a new railway bridge from Bridgeburg (Fort Erie) to Black Rock (Buffalo). This bridge, opened in November 1873, was also used by the Great Western.

Intense competition between the lines in a declining market bankrupted the weaker Canada Southern Railway. The company was saved from collapse by supply of ballast, easily obtainable on this route, is ample, giving a depth of eighteen inches for the whole length. And I may also add, that my experience and opinion on the Great Western Railway were against heavy works, but it was located and in progress before I joined that line. I had therefore only to carry out the plans as laid down. I can therefore say that I feel confident that a judicious laying out, and public letting in sections, will not materially increase this estimate; and I would remark that the ballasting is proposed to be done before opening the Railway for public traffic.

There is a particular feature in this scheme to which I would wish to draw your particular attention—that is, a passage to pass under the Detroit River at Amherstburg, by a Tunnel, or rather, two Tunnels. When I began fully to digest the bearing and extent of this line of communication, as a link between the far west and Buffalo, I found that 80½ miles in actual distance would be saved over any other line or route, it then occurred to me that to give this advantage its full force and bearing, it would be necessary to establish some mode of connection other than by ferry boat, as a compensation to the Suspension Bridge at the Falls. The construction of the line, estimates, and general facilities will next be laid before you. There are some portions of the line that I have not personally visited as time has been so limited since I received your instructions. I, however, feel perfectly satisfied that the estimates over that portion are equally correct with the portion I visited personally, as I have in my possession surveys made by other engineers, over that country, and my general knowledge of the localities, enables me to put faith in those surveys. I therefore recommend that the line be constructed from Amherstberg to Buffalo, as laid down on the map, and that it join the Buffalo and Brantford Road at Dunnville, and either run over that line by agreement, to Buffalo, or else that an independent line be run along side of it. Should the former be adopted, it will save the construction of some thirty-five or thirty-six miles of

CHAPTER XVI

THE RAILWAY TRANSPORTS

Two Classes, River and Lake Transports — Descriptions of River Transports — List of Traffic Carried by Them — Difficulties of Winter Navigation — Delays to Limited Trains — Description of Lake Transports — Lines — Distances across Lake Michigan — List of Vessels in this Service — Coal Trade across Lake Erie — The Transport Ashtabula — Dangers of Ice and Gales.

THE big car ferries of the Inland Seas, which operate the missing links in almost a score of trunk lines of the iron trail, are of two classes, — those for river service and those built especially for the lake routes. The original car transports, which were of the former class, appeared in the seventies, and were the outcome of the intense rivalry of the railroads to secure the greater share of the rapidly increasing commerce of the Middle West. Unloading merchandise from the cars, the ferrying, and reloading it on the other side was a slow and expensive method, and the time came when the traffic of the Michigan Central could no longer be handled profitably by breaking bulk at the hiatus of the Detroit River. Bridging the straits or rivers connecting Lake Huron with Lake Erie never was deemed feasible, and tunnelling the beds of the streams was not advocated until years after.

To load the cars, therefore, on large and powerful steamers and transport them across the narrow river was then the only practical means of overcoming Nature's handicap, and such service has been maintained in winter and in summer for many years. The Canada Southern Railroad, which had been extended from Amherstburg, near the mouth of Detroit River, to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, formed the eastern outlet of the Michigan Central, and, to connect with it the latter constructed a short branch line out and across Stony Island to deep water in the river. Plying back and forth between the terminal slip docks the big black transports carried hundreds of loaded cars and thousands of passengers daily. A number of years later, when the Michigan Central absorbed the Canadian road, a direct cut-off was constructed from Essex to Windsor, and the ferry route changed from that port to Detroit, the original ferry line being abandoned.

Our Inland Seas

The river transport, like other craft intended for quiet waters, is constructed with low freeboard and clear decks, and all the machinery is placed low in the hull entirely beneath the main deck. This leaves the main deck unobstructed for the three or four tracks which run lengthways of the vessel. The cars are shunted on the steamer from connecting tracks on the slip dock, or hauled off, just as switching is done on the tracks in the yard. When a train of cars is loaded on, the farther ends of the sections at the stern of the transport are held by strong bumpers, while the open or dock ends are chained fast and blocked so as to be immovable while the steamer is under way.

In the loading and unloading of a transport an apron at the extreme end of the slip dock is used, on which the tracks run to make a secure and strong union with those on the vessel. To provide for the constantly fluctuating levels, as the weight added to or withdrawn from the transport, brings it down or raises it in the water, a system of powerful balance arms is employed. The apron hangs from one end of these arms, while from the other end are counterweights aggregating forty tons. The whole mechanism is controlled by electric machinery, so that by the touch of a lever the outer end of the apron is raised or lowered to the level of the vessel's deck, the inner end working on rockers. The loading and unloading from different tracks may progress at the same time.

The fleet of ten car transports on the Detroit River comprises:

All of these transports are of iron or steel excepting the Great Western, built in 1866. In addition to this fleet the Pere Marquette line operates the transport International on the St. Clair River between Port Huron and Sarnia. With one exception this steamer is the oldest ferry now in service, having been built in 1872. It is of iron, two hundred and twenty feet in length, and of eight hundred and fifty tons' register.

The ten transports at Detroit average for every hour of every day in the year about six round trips, and as the distance is from one to two miles, according to the location of the terminal docks, they travel in the aggregate during the twelve months as far as three times around the earth. Originally they carried twenty-four cars in a passage, but railroad equipment has so increased in size of late years that (the cars now built being twenty per cent longer) they can take on only about eighteen or twenty cars, as they now run in a train. All of the cars ferried are not loads, however, as the bulk of the traffic is eastbound, and many cars are returned to the West empty. A nearly accurate estimate of the loads on the basis of six hundred and fifty thousand cars at an average of forty tons each, gives twenty-six million tons transported across the river in a year. In 1907 the Michigan Central transports made exactly twenty-seven thousand, four hundred and seventy-nine trips, and carried four hundred and forty-eight thousand, one hundred and thirty-six cars.

Besides the tremendous freight traffic of the trunk lines, from twenty-five to thirty-five limited and express trains are ferried across the river every twenty-four hours. The operation of cutting a "limited" in sections, switching them on the transport, ferrying across the river, reswitching and connecting up of the sections, and shunting into the passenger station, requires from thirty to forty minutes. Travellers, as a rule, find the train ferry across the busy river, which looks so peaceful and blue, a pleasant incident in their journey, and reluctantly lose sight of the picture of marine activity, as a fresh locomotive hooks on the train and speeds it on its way. The ferrying of freight trains is not so expedited, however, and from two to three hours are required for live-stock, dressed beef, and other perishables, while from five to twelve hours' delay occurs for bulk freight. Expediting the ferrying of the passenger and express traffic, as well as the perishable freight, only delays the regular shipments the more.

The powerful transports are able to maintain regular service during the Winter because they are so constructed as to be most formidable ice-crushers. Their prows are so shaped that they plough through ordinary ice fields as if the thick ice were nothing but paper. But in the depths of Winter the river is often blocked with ice, sometimes in solid fields to its bed, and again in great banks of jagged, grinding blocks. At such times the transport is forced up on the high irregular field, and by its very weight crushes and forces the ice beneath its bow. Progress under such conditions is slow and laborious, and when the passage is impassable, a transport forces its way miles down the river and wallows about until it has formed a huge air hole. Then it climbs the side of the ice floe or jam and loosens it. In this way a strong current is created in the river, the obstruction to navigation is carried away, and a free passage afforded the craft for perhaps a week. Unless the weather moderates the ice jam soon forms again and the channel must be cleared as before.

Sometimes an express or passenger train will be held in the stream for hours while the transport is fast in the ice, generally near the slip, as making the landing is the most difficult task of navigation of the ferries. In January, 1901, the transport Michigan with the Chicago-Montreal flier was stuck for ten hours so near the slip that a long plank would almost reach from the deck to the dock. There were more than a hundred passengers on board and the night was pitch dark. Captain Jenking worked the transport forward and back — forward and back — for hours, but the bank of ice remained firm. The passengers became much exercised at the long delay; they quickly cleared out the larder in the diner, and from engine room to pilot house, there rose a loud wail of indignation and fear. Finally, about daylight, the transports Great Western and Landsdowne managed to reach the imprisoned vessel, and their united efforts broke up the jam, and the Michigan was forced into her slip.

In order to avoid such delays so far as possible two of the transports are provided with additional power. One of these, the ferry Transport, besides the side paddle-wheels, has a bow propeller, and the Detroit has two propellers in the bow, in addition to twin-screws at the stern for the main motive power. These extra screws are used only in winter to draw out the ice from the slips by the suction thus created, large blocks being whirled beneath the surface and away toward the stern in a surprising manner. The additional power is also a great aid in times of serious jams or when the transport is aground. This sometimes occurs in thirty or forty feet of water although their normal draft is only twelve to fifteen feet. It is due to slush ice which forms on the bottom of the vessel at the bow, and is hardened into a solid compact mass, much like the "heeling-up" of the snow on a horse's hoof. It accumulates as the bow is forced into the snow which covers the ice floes in the crushing process, until it is several feet in thickness. When a ferry runs aground from this cause it is helpless, and only the combined power of other ferries is sufficient to release it, sometimes after hours of delay.

But even in Summer the river navigation is not always free and uninterrupted. Fogs settle down over the stream at times and whatever craft are caught, anchor as quickly as their "hooks" can be dropped. The Landsdowne was once caught in a thick bank of fog, in the Summer of 1906, with a Wild West show aboard, and was held in midstream until eleven o'clock the next morning. Meanwhile the cow-boys and Indians raised a "circus" on board, threatening to shoot the pilot house and the whole crew into the river, and to scuttle the ship, unless they were landed in time to pitch their tents and form their parade. All the thundering expletives, however, failed to move Captain McGregor in his resolve to abide by the rules of river navigation, and remain in his safe anchorage.

The car ferries of the lake routes, which link the State of Michigan to the great Northwest, and the East, are of very different construction from the river transports. They are deep-hulled vessels of steel and of great structural strength, and with powerful engines they ply back and forth across Lake Michigan, the Straits of Mackinac, and Lake Erie, in all kinds of weather, in winter and in summer. Like the river ferries they are ice-crushers, but of greater size and power. During two or three of the winter months the lakes are frozen in a solid sheet of ice for twenty or thirty miles from the shores, and in extremely severe winters the ice fields meet in mid-lake. To keep a channel open in the depth of winter, even for daily passages back and forth, is a hazardous undertaking for the hardy mariners. The frequent gales which sweep the lakes break up the fields into ice floes which, driven one way or another with great force, pile up in huge banks, often in the direct course of the transports and as high as their upper decks. At such times they free themselves only after repeated bucking of the shifting mass of ice, sometimes miles in extent, by running their stout prow up on the edge of the mass, breaking it down by their sheer weight, and ploughing through the ragged, grinding blocks of ice thus formed.

The main deck of the lake transports is given up entirely to car space. There are generally four tracks running lengthways of the vessel, but the loading and unloading end is at the stern, instead of the bow, as with the river ferries. The hull is built up about eighteen feet above this deck and extends to the extreme bow. The upper deck, which is fitted up with luxurious cabins, staterooms, dining-saloon, and all conveniences for the large passenger traffic crossing the lakes, gives the leviathan, from a bow view, the appearance of a package freighter. But, as it passes before one, the illusion is dispelled, as the ends of four sections of a through train are seen at the stern. Looking forward through the deck from the stern when the tracks are free of cars, the impression formed is of twin subways, dark and gloomy, double tracks in each, the bright rails of which are lost in the blackness of the bow, and a midship section between the subways given over to the funnels, engine vents, and passages. Above the upper dack are the pilot house, officers' cabins, lifeboats, and other hamper of a passenger steamer.

In the Lake Michigan service there are in all thirteen of these huge car ferries. The largest fleet and the most important commerce route is that of the Pere Marquette with six splendidly equipped transports, five of which are uniform in size and power, and the largest on the lakes. In addition to these the steamship line owns four large freight and passenger steamers engaged in the salt and package freight business across Lake Michigan. The main lines, however, through which flows the bulk of the traffic, are Ludington, in Michigan, and Manitowoc, Milwaukee, and Kewaunee, on the Wisconsin side. Another route is in operation between Muskegon and Milwaukee, while passenger steamers ply between Ottawa Beach and Milwaukee. The principal freight traffic is eastbound, and consists of grain, flour, malt, canned goods, fish, lumber, and general merchandise, destined for various points in the Eastern States. On the return trips the cars are laden with numerous products of the East, principally manufactured goods, coal, steel, structural materials, cement, besides furniture, automobiles, drugs, stoves, and brass-finished goods made in the industrial centres of Michigan. The routes vary in length from sixty miles to Manitowoc to ninety-five miles to Milwaukee, and a transport averages a round trip, including loading and unloading, in twenty-four hours. They carry thirty loaded cars on a single trip averaging forty tons each of merchandise, and during the regular navigation season a full complement of passengers. They are profit producing factors of the trans-Michigan railroad, aside from their chief value as feeders.

The Ann Arbor Railway line operates four transports from Frankfort, its western terminal, to Manitowoc and Kewaunee, in Wisconsin, and Menominee and Manistique, in upper Michigan. These transports, which with one exception are not so large and powerful as the more modern steamers, cover routes from sixty-six to ninety miles long, carrying from eighteen to twenty-four cars in a single trip. A tri-weekly service is maintained during the navigation season from Frankfort to the upper Michigan ports named, and Kewaunee, and a daily service from Frankfort to Manitowoc throughout the year. The traffic of this line consists of very much the same commodities as the Pere Marquette. Still farther north the Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad operates one transport between Northport and Manistique, a distance of about seventy-four miles. It is of the largest type of car ferry, and during the navigation season, makes trips as often as the traffic warrants.

Between Grand Haven and Milwaukee is the route of the Grand Trunk Railway line, which, besides a number of stanch passenger and package freighters, operates one transport. The distance is eighty-four miles, and daily trips are maintained by all steamers. The Lake Michigan Car Ferry Transit Company operates two transports of large size between Chicago and ports up the lake. Michigan City, St. Joseph, and Benton Harbor, and South Haven are other important ports on the east shore.

Coming down the lakes there are found at the Straits of Mackinac, two car ferries operated by the Mackinac Transportation Company. They connect the upper Michigan railroads with the Michigan Central and the Grand Rapids and Indiana railways in an important north-and-south traffic. Passenger trains as well as freight are transported across the straits between Mackinaw City and St. Ignace, a distance of about five miles, and the business is heavy at all times of the year.

The car transports of the lakes, classified according to the lines operating them, are:

The car transports on Lake Erie are engaged exclusively in the coal trade which originates in the Ohio and Pennsylvania coal fields, and reaches out to all points in Canada and the Northwest. Several routes are operated from Conneaut, Ohio, to Port Dover, Port Stanley, and Rondeau, on the Canadian side, in which the Pere Marquette with its line across Ontario to Sarnia and Michigan and thence to the Western States, largely enters. The transport system was introduced on Lake Erie in 1895 by the Shenango No. 1 and the Shenango No. 2, which were ice crushers of three thousand, five hundred horse-power, and with a car capacity of twenty-six. The No. 1 burned at Conneaut in 1906. In 1904 another type, which is not of the transport class, was built and placed on the coal route between Conneaut and Rondeau. Instead of the cars being transported across the lake, they were run on the vessel, and their contents dumped through the hopper bottoms and the open deck, into the hold. Ten cars can be unloaded by this method in less than a minute, and the cars drawn off. The Marquette and Bessemer No. 1 can carry two thousand, five hundred tons net of soft coal in the bulk. Upon arrival at port across the lake, four grapple unloaders remove the cargo in eight hours. The loss of time and the expense of unloading is partly offset by the greatly increased carrying capacity, which is more than double that of the other method.

The latest route was established in 1906–7 from Ashtabula, the world's largest ore-receiving port, to Port Burwell, in Canada, by the new transport Ashtabula, the best equipped vessel of its class on the lakes. It is in advance of other transports in being constructed with water bottom, ballast tanks, and eight transverse water-tight bulkheads of steel. Six of these bulkheads extend to the main or car deck, and two to the lower deck. The water in the compartments is easily controlled by ballast pumps, and by filling some and emptying others, the trim of the vessel is so governed as to materially aid in the progress through ice and in gales. The transport is propelled by twin screws, driven by two triple-expansion engines with cylinders nineteen and one-half, thirty-one, and fifty-two inches in diameter by thirty-six inches stroke. Steam is supplied under high pressure by four Scotch boilers. To expedite the service of this huge transport, new cars were constructed, thirty-eight feet long, and of sixty tons' capacity. Thirty of these cars are carried in a single trip. The transport easily makes two trips back and forth every twenty-four hours. In its official test it covered the distance to Port Burwell and return in nine hours and twenty-five minutes, at an average speed, under load, and with a sea running, of fifteen and one-fourth miles an hour. This is the record for car ferries on the lakes.

When any of the lake transports leave port in winter, if for no more than a few hours' run, they are always supplied with a full stock of provisions sufficient for at least three weeks. This is to provide for an emergency in case the ferry is frozen fast in the ice floes en route. Many instances are recalled when a transport was imprisoned for days at a time in a seemingly impassable barrier of solid ice, piled up in hummocks and badly windrowed. It floated about with the ice field as the wind drove the huge mass about the lake, and sometimes only a moderation of the weather or change of wind weakened the ice so that the steamer could release itself. In such cases members of the crew often walk ashore on the ice.

Another great danger to the car ferries is the difficulty of making port in gales, when the short, choppy seas raised on the lakes sweep over the breakwater of the harbor. Many times the captain is obliged to "lay to" out in the lake for the gale to blow itself out, not daring to venture into the comparatively narrow entrance of the harbor. One of the largest transports on Lake Michigan went ashore when under full load, in the Fall of 1908, and for nearly a week the combined power of two or three of her sister ships was not sufficient to pull her off. A fortunate shift of wind and a rise in the lake level released her one night, and she drifted away some distance before the wreckers were aware of what had happened. There are many thrilling experiences in the lives of the sturdy mariners of the Inland Seas, but none can equal those which the transport service involves.

Detroit to Canada. The third area of railroad car ferry traffic was the crossings between Michigan and Canada. These crossings started in Grosse Isle, Detroit, Marine City or Port Huron. Much of the international traffic was diverted with the building of both the St. Clair River Tunnel and the Detroit-Windsor railroad tunnel, but high loads and dangerous chemicals continued to travel by car ferry or barge well into the 1990's.

The Chicago and Canada Southern Railway was a planned extension of the Canada Southern Railway west from Grosse Ile, Michigan to Chicago, Illinois. The line was only built to Fayette, Ohio, and was later split between the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railway and Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway.

History

In 1873 the Canada Southern Railway reached Michigan from Buffalo, New York via a train ferry and the Canada Southern Bridge Company across Grosse Ile. To continue west to Chicago, the Chicago and Canada Southern Railway was chartered July 11, 1871. The line had only reached Fayette, Ohio (though grading was done further west) in September 1878 when the Panic of 1873 had its full effect and construction was halted. At that time the Canada Southern was reorganized, and the Chicago and Canada Southern was sold on November 22, 1888 to the Detroit and Chicago Railroad, owned by the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway.

The track between Grosvenor and Corbus, in the middle of the line, was abandoned in 1893. In 1897 it was abandoned from Corbus east to Dundee, and in March 1898 the line east of Dundee was sold to the Detroit and Lima Northern Railroad, which became part of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railway. The remaining piece west of Grosvenor was operated as a branch of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern's Old Road from the Grosvenor end.

West from Montpelier, Ohio to beyond North Liberty, Indiana, the unfinished C&CS alignment was later used[1] by the Wabash Railroad, which completed its line between Montpelier and Gary, Indiana in 1893.

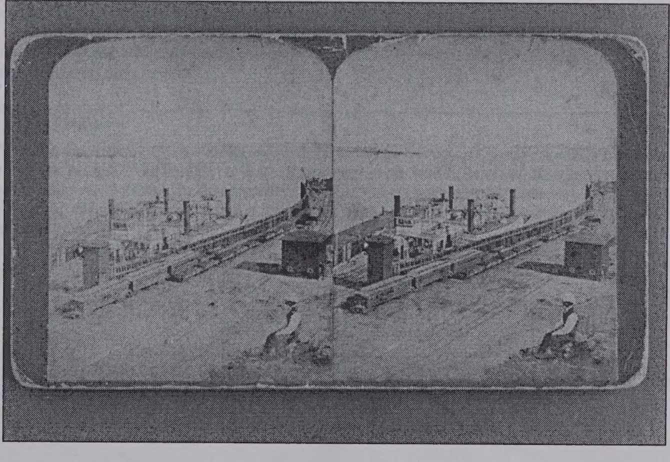
Memory has thus brought me forward to the "sixties," when a "grand" ferry-boat, the "Louise," with its new contrivance of compound engines (and more levers than a man could jump to), was built to run between San Francisco and the modest little "San Franscisco and Oakland Railroad," 4 miles in length, for which I obtained the first financial backing and was engineer, and which we then truly prophesied would grow to be the terminus of the great Transcontinental Railway, before such a thing existed except in the minds of enterprising, dauntless men.



X

Still later, memory brings me to the "seventies," when as Chief Engineer of the Chicago and Canada Southern Railway, a trial trip was made on the Detroit River with the large railroad ferry-boat the "Transfer," with three tracks to convey at once twenty-one freight cars between Amherstburg in Her Majesty's Dominion and Grosse Isle in the United States. Let me say, in passing, that this is Grosse Isle (French), not "Goose Ile," as its first post-marking stamps actually came from the Washington General Post Office in 1872.

We now reach the "eighties," and on the Atlantic Coast I note that the ferry across the mouth of Chesapeake Bay, on the route of the Now York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Railroad, is probably the longest regular railway ferry in the world (24 miles, time card two hours from Cape Charles to Old Point Comfort, or 36 miles, three hours, to Norfolk). Its fine ferry steamer, the "Cape Charles," which was completed a year ago, attained at its trial trip a mean rate of speed of 18 1/2 statute. miles per hour with steam pressure of 55 to 60 pounds. This boat is arranged for the transfer of four passenger cars. Its dimensions are given as follows:

Length over all	269	feet 6 inches.
Length on 6 foot water line	252	"
Beam, moulded	36	"
Beam over all	63	" 6 "
Depth from top of keel to top of iron beams at lowest place	14	"
Displacement at draft of 7 feet	794	gross tons.

The paddle wheels (feathering) are 24 1/2 feet diameter. Each wheel has twelve floats which are 9 1/2 feet long and 40 inches wide. The motive power is one surface-condensing beam engine with cylinder 54 inches in diameter and stroke of piston of 11 feet.

Subject: Re: Confused

Hi: Long time no talk, let's see if I can help you, my Dad was the Capt. of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock Co., called " The Crest " (1st electric dredge in this country or so I am told) Uncle Jack, (John David) was 1st Mate at the time my Dad was Capt., they always worked together as far as I know.....My brother, Frank, (Francis Leo, Jr.) was the Capt. of a tugboat for same co., I think .... also later in life worked for Moran Towing and when he was called back in the service, before his 3rd son was born, he had to do about I yr. at the time if you had 3 children you were not required to serve....during his time in service he was the capt. of a tug for the army engineers....only for a very short time.... it was crazy, he was Navy Reserve, however since he could handle the tug, they changed his statis to ARMY Reserve ???? so he could handle the tug....then some General in the Army stationed at Governors Island, NY, had a yacht, and he was Capt. of it til his discharge, all told he was in about 11 months.... I think I have it right. Hope it helps....Sorry to hear about Dave, I worked for a Vascular Surgeon for 25 yrs., (was working for him when I came to your folks anniversary), hope he gets some help. This wk., is hectic, my sons oldest daughter it getting married Friday night, so much going on here. I was in charge of all the cookies for the rehersal dinner.....bake and frost them apple green with black lettering...Something new to me, we did not do such things in my time, but times have changed....Been hectic all of Dec., my very best friend of 67 yrs died of Alzheimers Disease, I had a head on collisson and totalled my car...had a college grad. 12/21 and Christmas here, bought a new Subaru on 12/31 and now for this wk. I have final fitting on gown tomorrow, hair and nails on Thurs., Rehersal Dinner Thurs.,night and wedding on Friday. I am too old for this stuff....will be 78 in May....My health is excellent and so I go on and do as much as possible. Give my best to Dave, and get a couple of opinions on his problem...!!!!!!!!!! Love, Anita

Subject: Confused

I've confused myself as I have some conflicting information.

Uncle Jack was a Captain of a Dredge? Do you have any idea of it's name.

Your Dad (Frank) was the Captain of a Tug? It's name?

Or what is correct?

I was told the opposite but I see Uncle Jack worked for Great Lakes Dredge and Dock in 1942 so that made think I was wrong.

Hope all is well there. Dave has been going through some more tests all having something to do with his lack of circulation. Will see the vascular doctor again next week.

Thanks for your help.

Helen

Subject: Busy Times

Don't know where the time goes ...

Last Saturday we made a trip to South Bend to see a guy about some Studebaker parts which it ended up he did not have. But I loved where he lived. It was down winding roads in the middle of the country and they called it Mulberry Farms. His original house was built in 1872 (but I didn't get inside). On the way back, we had a late lunch, early supper at Das Essen House in Middlebury.

Then Sunday we had a Thunderbird meeting at Quimby's up in the Kroger strip mall. Found the food better this time.

On Monday, we picked up all our four pair of glasses at Costco. Mine are definitely much more comfortable than my old pair which left a nasty imprint on the bridge of my nose. That evening, I bought RB his birthday dinner at the Olive Garden.

Yesterday, had an appointment at TLC with Dr. Venerable. Have had eye problems for some time and Dr. Cooper sent me there. Dr. V determined that I had an allergy and that my lower eye lids are sagging. Dr. Cooper did tell me that I couldn't close my eyes all the way. Dr. V gave me a sample of eye drops to treat allergy and wrote a prescription for it. Costco RX called me yesterday and said that my insurance would not cover the cost of $180+!!! So it is not on order until I try the sample for a few days to see is they help. Then in September if the drops have not helped enough I will have eye lid surgery there. The eye lids not closing enough cause dry eye.

Today we went to the grocery store.

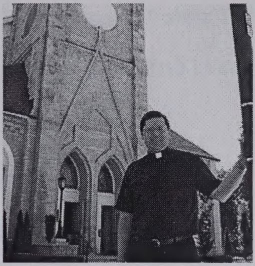
Priest shortage forces Basilians out

Thursday, 10 July 2008

Written by Ron Stang, Catholic Register Special
Views : 1480



AMHERSTBURG, Ont. - After 130 years the Basilian Fathers are pulling up stakes at St. John the Baptist parish here, deep in southwestern Ontario.

In fact, the Basilians' presence coincides with the same year Amherstburg, an historic community that played key roles in the War of 1812, the Upper Canada Rebellion and the Underground Railroad, officially became a town.

But the parish itself dates from 1802 as a mission of Assumption Church in Sandwich, now part of Windsor. The building dates from 1844 and its steeple to this day dominates the town's landscape.

The Basilians are leaving Amherstburg because of the order's shortage of priests. The Basilians, a teaching order, will still have a presence in one church in the diocese, Assumption in Windsor. The Basilians also run adjacent Assumption University, forerunner to the University of Windsor, and now an affiliated college.

The end of the Basilians' presence coincides with the retirement of the church's pastor, Fr. Michael Brand. Brand was made pastor eight years ago but was also at the parish in 1975. At that time, he said, St. John the Baptist had four priests "who actively worked at the parish, and a convent of nuns." The nuns, he said, "are now gone and the parish is down to two priests."

Associate pastor Fr. Brian Jane, who has been with the parish two years, takes over as pastor. While he is a diocesan pastor he was educated by the Basilians in nearby Windsor, his home town.

Jane, who was ordained four years ago and previously was at Most Precious Blood parish in Windsor, said he's pleased to be taking over such a well-organized church. While there has been dwindling clergy the laity has taken on a major role.

There is a strong youth ministry, a sacramental program in the schools and as many as six people involved in a wake ministry, performing readings at funeral wakes.

"The staff is excellent so I'm coming into a good situation," Jane said. "The Basilians have left it in really good shape."

He is being joined by Fr. Nichola Maura-Iko, who will also be based at St. John the Baptist.

Mike Specht, chair of the parish council, said he was "disappointed" the Basilians are leaving. He said he spoke to the superior general but there was nothing more that could be done.

"It's unfortunate it's not continuing but it's been a long run," he said.

The church has been going through major renovations in recent years including reconstruction of the bell tower and steeple.

London Bishop Ronald Fabbro, himself a Basilian, celebrated the final Basilian Mass. He said the Basilians were undergoing restructuring "and they agreed they would allow Fr. Brand to complete his term here as pastor."

Fabbro said that with 1,200 active families St. John the Baptist is "critical for the pastoral care of this area." He said there has been a commitment from the diocese that the church continue to operate.

"We're sorry to lose the Basilians but we're committed to this parish."

The bishop praised the church's ministries, especially it's youth ministry run by Jean Beneteau. In his homily he suggested the Basilians' history of teaching meant there was "always a commitment to young people." He called the ministry "a model for the whole diocese."

Mom + Dad Read -

I was sorry to hear about Uncle Jerry and just wanted to send a note and let you know that I was thinking of you and your loss.

Uncle Jerry was always very nice and warm to me - a pleasure to be around even though those times were limited.

Also, I hope everything is going well otherwise. It's been a very busy fall for me trying to see as many of Niki's games as possible and trying to include Viki too. Lots of miles on the car and in the air when Gary can make it.

Anyway - I do think of you often and hope good things for all of you.

Lots Love —

Karen

Alien Registration Form

THE UNITED STATES has passed legislation several times to require noncitizen residents, or "aliens," to register with the government. This was usually during times of war, including the War of 1812, Civil War, and World Wars I and II. While the informational requirements have changed over time, applications consistently asked for name, place of residence, age, country of origin, and date and place of arrival.

The Alien Registration Act of 1940, also known as the Smith Act, required all aliens to be registered and fingerprinted. Between Aug. 1, 1940, and March 31, 1944, more than 5.5 million noncitizen residents were registered. They completed the two-page Alien Registration Form (AR-2), which had 15 questions covering places of birth and citizenship, date and other details of first and last arrival in the United States. The form also gathered information about employment, organizational memberships and other activities within the past five years, relatives living in the United States, arrests and convictions, and more. Chances are, the answers will point you to other documentary evidence.

The applicant (or if the person was younger than 14, the parent or guardian) signed an affidavit at the bottom

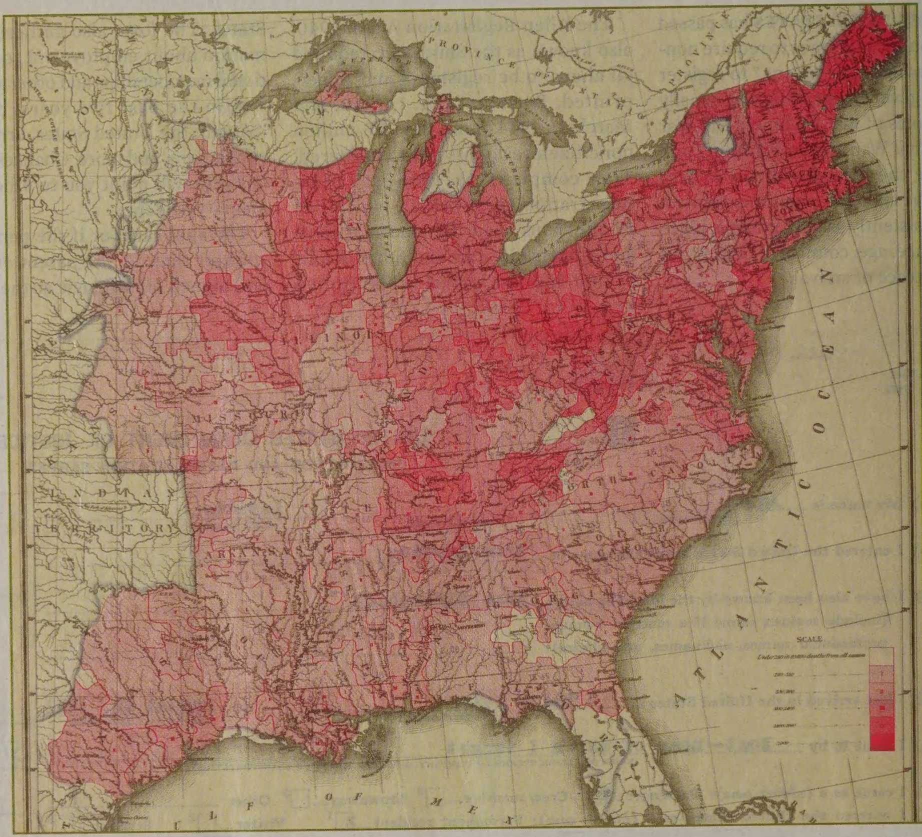
A Nation Consumed



Map Showing the Proportion of Deaths From Consumption to Deaths From All Causes by Francis A. Walker, 1874, David Rumsey Historical Map Collection, <www.davidrumsey.com/luna/servlet/s/02dej1>

CONSUMPTION, TODAY MORE commonly known as tuberculosis, is one of the world's deadliest diseases. Spread through the air by coughing, spitting and sneezing, it was particularly potent in the late 1800s and early 1900s in impoverished urban areas where people crowded together in places with poor sanitation.

This map illustrates US consumption deaths based on mortality statistics compiled during the 1870 federal census, more than a decade before Dr. Robert Koch identified the bacteria that causes the disease. Red shading indicates the ratio of total deaths from consumption; the darker the shading, the more consumption deaths. Notice that the New England states suffered especially high losses, along with densely populated hubs of industrialization in places such as Ohio and Illinois. But it's evident that tuberculosis touched much of the country, and would've been a major public health concern of our ancestors at the time.

Once the cause of the contagion was identified in the 1880s, cities began campaigns to improve sanitation and denounce spitting in public places. Medications to effectively fight the disease wouldn't be developed until the early 1900s. ■

Hunt Family on Find A Grave

This is my family! I descend from Thomas Hunt who died in Toledo in 1917; William J. Hunt d. in Toledo, 1947 and Frank W. Hunt died in Toledo in 1997.
You have some information I do not but I also see you are missing some information. I know where you fit in to the family.

By what you have listed on Find a Grave I gather you have not found the burial place for David John Hunt the husband of Kate F. Hunt. Some years ago I paid a researcher in the Kansas City area to try to find him but I'm still looking. I would like to talk/write and share information. Helen Hunt Read - heread@buckeye-express.com

Here is the Hunt ancestry I've been working on and you will note that it is nearly identical to Anita's, with edits and updated info.
I would be most grateful if you would look it over and let me know if you see any errors and if you could add additional information that I don't have. This is not a finished report as I haven't given up hope of filling in the gaps. Most of my family will receive this plus copies of historic stuff like death certificates, marriage and birth registers, cemetery monument photos, homes (which are still standing) the family lived in both in Toledo and New York. I expect to finish by the end of October or sooner. After this its back to the McKenzie clan - my mother's ancestors who were Highlanders. I've make a good start on it tracing family back to 1824.

You can reach me at 301-606-8244 almost anytime. I'm retired after 32 years in adult corrections and 10 more in background investigations.

These records provide information on the burials of U.S. veterans and their dependents who were buried in the various Veterans Affairs (VA) National Cemeteries, state veterans' cemeteries, or other military cemeteries. Because the information regarding the burials is compiled from multiple sources, the amount of information provided for each burial will vary. Dear Helen,

Thank you for your enquiry and for the $2 - a thoughtful and appreciated gesture.

You certainly have a problem, but if you are determined enough we ought to be able to overcome it. Many English counties now have 1800-1837 marriage indexes, for instance, and we can contact them all to see if they contain a George HUNT and Sarah (THOMPSON). If none do, at least we will have eliminated a huge chunk of England!

I take it that the Canadian censuses do not show an exact birthplace, more's the pity. One thing I don't understand is how you know that Ellen had been in Canada since 1851, and that her birthplace was Limerick, but that you don't know the same facts about William George.

Occupations tended to run in families, so we may find something on George HUNT and his son in marine engineering records at the Public Record Office.

It is always hard to quantify the cost of research in genealogy - the simple truth is, nobody can say just when (if!) success will be achieved. On the first try? Second? Third...? If you can provide $100 I can attend to the marriage search and a few other avenues; for $200 I can include the naval research and make use of other London resources. At whatever point I achieve success I can use the remaining funds to explore the family more deeply.

If you can convert your payment to sterling all well and good; but if that is inconvenient just send a personal cheque, and allow a few extra $ for my exchange charges.

I look forward to hearing from you again.

Regards,

Peter J Turvey.

Dear Helen,

Thank you for your note of 12 December. I have just had a long break in America - West Coast - hence this delayed reply.

I'm sorry that there is little to report yet on the HUNT's. I have been badly let down by a so-called expert on C19 Maritime Research, who promised me all manner of meaningful results concerning William George and his sea/ferry service, but who came up with absolutely nothing, after six months! Do not worry - apart from time, this has cost absolutely nothing. It is very annoying, all the same.

Last year I started to search all the counties of England for the marriage of George HUNT to Sarah THOMPSON. Virtually all the counties have a marriage index for the relevant period in some form or another - I have now tried about a dozen, without success yet. I will keep pegging away, and hopefully it will emerge. Some of the index holders take ages to reply. Some are quite expensive - £10 and £12 per enquiry, so naturally I'm leaving those until last. I'm also having the Worcs marriage of George HUNT and Sarah TOMES explored more closely.

I'll be in touch if there are any developments.

Yours sincerely,

Peter J Turvey.

Dear Helen,

I hope that you haven't despaired of ever hearing from me again! I have been trying my best for you. The nationwide marriage search has proved to be one of the most awkward assignments I've ever taken on. The various Marriage Indexes throughout the country are held by a wide variety of people, some of whom are quite difficult to find. For some it involves writing to the secretary of a local Family History Society in order to get the name of the index holder. Three months later the letter is returned - the secretary has moved, no forwarding address. More enquiries reveal details of a new secretary - he/she takes ages to reply because of workload - provides address of index holder. This turns out to be out of date - new secretary didn't realise. Details of current index holder finally discovered - he/she only doing the job halfheartedly, takes months to reply. Of course, this is the exception rather than the rule - many reply by return of post - but there have been quite a few awkward ones.

The present position is that I've now exhausted the funds that you provided. I've made enquiries which cover approximately 60% of the country, and there are about ten more enquiries which I could make which would bring the coverage up to about 70% of the country. That would be the maximum search possibility, with the remaining 30% being counties and districts throughout the UK for which no Marriage Index is available.

Needless to say, the marriage search so far has failed to yield the marriage of George HUNT and Sarah THOMPSON. As for the Shipston couple, the jury is still out on them, as they say. Even with this event there was misleading infomation. The enquiry to the Worcs. Marriage Index produced this item, as you can imagine (but no other one), and gave the groom's residence as Birmingham. This proved to be a misreading, probably by some well-meaning helper. The true details are:-

Shipston-on-Stour, Worcs (but now in Warwickshire)

21 Dec 1819 George HUNT of Burmington = Sarah TOMES Licence

You will see that the marriage took place by licence, rather by banns. Unfortunately the licence has not been tracked down yet. It could be in one of a dozen repositories. It is worth looking for, as sometimes the licence contained extra details about the couple in question.

Shipston has been searched for HUNT baptisms from 1819 to 1830. Several were found (it's a widespread surname in the area), but none to parents George & Sarah. These included a George on 23 Dec 1823, to John & Hannah; and a William on 25 Dec 1826, to William & Harriet.

In the parish of Burmington, some three miles south of Shipston, there were even more HUNT's. These include:-

9 Apr 1820	Eliza,	George	& Sarah	HUNT
12 Sep 1824	William,	"	"	"
18 Oct 1829	John,	"	"	"
8 Dec 1831	Emmanuel,	"	"	"
24 Apr 1836	Jane,	"	"	"

Goerge's occupation was that of carpenter, which hardly proves anything but at least it is not at odds with anything that we know. The William baptism above does not quite tally with the known birth date. The name pattern is inconclusive. William George in Canada did not use Eliza or Jane at all, but he did (eventually!) name one son Emmanuel. At Burmington one of the other HUNT couples having children at the same time as George and Sarah was an Emmanuel & Mary HUNT, so George & Emmanuel might have been brothers, and Emmanuel might have been a regular family name within branches of this extended HUNT family.

Amongst HUNT burials there was a George aged 74 who was buried on 18 Apr 1872 and a Sarah aged 85 on 1 Mar 1879. We cannot say whether or not these are the parents of the Burmington children without further in-depth exploration.

There you have it. Alas, it is still quite inconclusive. My ideas for further research, using a similar payment as before, would be to mop up the Marriage Index enquiries whilst at the same time focussing even more closely on the Shipston family. I could discover what the census returns have to tell us about them, and see if they left wills or any other useful documentation behind them.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Merry Christmas,

Peter J Turvey.

NOTES TO 229 GEORGE STREET BEING PART LOT 13, PART LOT 12 ON THE EAST SIDE OF GEORGE STREET

Lot 13 is the second lot south of the southeast corner of Murray and George Streets. Lot 14 is the lot on the corner of Murray and George Streets. In a letter dated August 29, 1839 sent to the Crown Land Office, John Sloan had written that Pierre Renaud had originally received the location ticket for Lot 13. Pierre subsequently assigned his interest in Lot 13 to Alexis Theophile LeMay. This must have occurred several years earlier as Sloan had mentioned in a letter dated July 30, 1839 that Pierre Renaud had died after making the transfer and left no family. (This method of granting Crown Land by issuing a location ticket had been discontinued by the 1830's.) Sometime in the late 1830's. A. T. Lemay assigned the location ticket to Francois Lesperance, an employee of John Sloan. Francois Lesperance then transferred his interest in Lot 13 to John Sloan. Sloan had then sold Lot 13 to Captain John Cunningham and had guaranteed to Cunningham that he would be able to obtain the Patent for Lot 13. Relying on this guarantee, Cunningham had started to build a house on Lot 13. It is not known what transpired thereafter as there is no documentation on title that Captain Cunningham ever owned Lot 13 nor any more correspondence with the Crown Land Department regarding Cunningham's claim to Lot 13.

In a letter dated January 14, 1848 from John Sloan to Honourable John A. Macdonald, then the Commissioner of Crown Lands in Montreal, Mr. Sloan set out the problem that he faced in obtaining the Patent for Lot 13. According to Sloan, he had been in possession of the original location ticket and all the transfers, but he had subsequently lost the location ticket. When he had contacted the Crown Land Department about his problem, the Commissioner of Crown Lands (presumably the Commissioner previous to Sir John A. MacDonald) had informed Thomas Steers, Mr. Sloan's agent in Montreal, that the matter had been referred to the local agent, Dr. McMullen in the Town of Sandwich. Dr. McMullen had not moved on the matter, even though John Sloan had often spoken on the subject to him. John Sloan's only request of John A. Macdonald was to advise him as to what course he should take in order to obtain the Patent for Lot 13. Macdonald's assistance does not seem to have been forthcoming as John Sloan did not obtain the Patent for Lot 13 until March 20, 1852.[1]

On October 15, 1852 John Sloan conveyed Lot 13 to John Grenier for 5 shillings. This was a remarkably low price even if the lot were vacant.[2] It would also be unusual if the lot were vacant as the Crown Land Department normally required evidence that a house had been built on the lot prior to granting a Patent and the Crown Land Department had previously refused to permit John Sloan's lands to be exempted from this rule. Grenier also owned Lot 14 abutting to the north. Research indicates that Jean Grenier built a 2 storey stone house on the corner of Lot 14 and operated his woodworking business on the remainder of Lot 14 and all of Lot 13.

Jean B. Grenier was born in a suburb of Montreal in 1817, the son of Jean Baptiste Grenier and Francoise Collin dit Laliberte. Grenier came to Amherstburg after the 1837 Rebellion and engaged in the timber trade with Peter Laliberty Sr. In 1838 Grenier married Marie Ann Parker, the widow of Pierre Meloche. Marie Meloche owned and occupied Lot 33 on the west side of King Street where 278 King Street is located today. Marie died in 1840 leaving one daughter Mary Meloche by her first husband Pierre Meloche. In 1842, Jean Baptiste married Angelique Martin who lived with her widowed mother who owned Lot 4 on the east side of King Street where 293 King Street is located today. Angelique died in 1845 leaving two daughters Angelique Angeline and Amelia Emelie. In 1847 Jean Baptiste married for the third time to Clemence Morin.

NOTES TO 229 GEORGE STREET BEING PART LOT 13, PART LOT 12 ON THE EAST SIDE OF GEORGE STREET

In 1868 Jean Baptiste Grenier moved his cabinet making shop to the west part of the property now known as 144 Murray Street but continued to reside on the corner of George and Murray Streets. Grenier was an excellent cabinet maker and woodcarver. Along with Zenobie Morin, he made the counters and other fixtures for J. D. Burk's new store on the northwest corner of Gore and Seymour Streets. Fifteen years before he died, he made his own hand carved coffin of black walnut. Grenier was also a Town Councillor in the early days of the town, a Trustee for the Separate School Board and a Justice of the Peace. John B. Grenier died in1892.[3]

On January 20, 1873 Jean Baptise Grenier sold Lots 13 and 14 to Ferdinand Langlois who was a Farmer from Anderdon Township. The property sold for the considerable sum of $1550.[4] The Grenier family then moved to their new house at 114 Murray Street beside Grenier's new woodworking shop.

On May 15, 1876 Ferdinand Langlois sold the south half of Lot 13 for $150 to Augustus Bastien Jr. who is described as a Capenter in the Deed.[5] This is the property where 229 George Street is located today. The 1877 Amherstburg Assessment assessed Augustus Bastien's property for $200. The sale price of $150 and the assessed value of $200 would mean that there was likely a building on the property, as an eighth of an acre of vacant land would have had an assessed value of $50 in the mid 1870's. This building must have been present prior to the sale to Augustus Bastien Jr. This building is likely the house municipally known as 229 George Street today. Since 1868, Augustus Bastien had lived at 220 Brock Street. He never personally resided at 229 George Street. The rear yard of 229 George Street abuts the rear yard of 220 Brock Street.

There is a note at The Marsh Collection Society which states that the residence on the east side of George Street about opposite the First Baptist Church had been moved from the grounds of Fort Malden to that site about 1875. It is possible that this information is correct as it is known that the house now known as 229 George Street was at its present location by 1876. Augustus Bastien was a House Mover. If the house were moved it is possible that Augustus had been involved in moving the building. Further research may be able to verify this story and identify the date when the house was constructed at its original location on Fort Malden.[6]

The following year on December 18, 1878 Augustus Bastien sold the south half of Lot 13 for $300 to Ellen Hunt the wife of William George Hunt, an Engineer.[7] This is the property on which 229 George Street is located. According to assessments the Hunts resided on the property now known as 229 George Street until 1883. In 1884 Augustus Bastien is shown as the owner of the Hunt's property on the assessment, although no deed is ever registered from Ellen Hunt to Augustus Bastien. It may be that the Hunts had defaulted on the mortgage that they had given to Augustus Bastien and he had repossessed the property.[8]

By Deed dated May 6, 1886 Augustus Bastien sold the property on which 229 George Street is located to Hattie Primeau, the wife of Remi Primeau.[9] Remi Primeau was the son of Francis F. Primeau, a Blacksmith who owned the property on the west side of George Street where 262 George Street is located today.

Grenier was an excellent cabinet maker and woodcarver. Along with Zenobie Martin, he made the counters and other fixtures for J. D. Burk's new store on the northeast corner of Gore and Dalhousie Streets. Fifteen years before he died, he made his own hand carved coffin of black walnut. Grenier was also a Town Councillor in the early days of the town, a Trustee for the Separate School Board and a Justice of the Peace. John B. Grenier died in 1892.

On January 20, 1875 Jean Baptiste Grenier sold Lots 11 and 13 to Ferdinand Langlois who was a Farmer from Anderdon Township. The property sold for the considerable sum of $1650. The Grenier family then moved to their new house at 118 Murray Street beside Grenier's new woodworking shop.

On May 15, 1876 Ferdinand Langlois sold the south half of Lot 13 for $150 to Augustus Bastien Jr. who is described as a Carpenter in the Deed. This is the property where 229 George Street is located today. The 1882 Amherstburg Assessment assessed Augustus Bastien's property for $200. The sale price of $150 and the assessed value of $200 would mean that there was likely a building on the property, as an eighth of an acre of vacant land would have had an assessed value of $50 in the mid 1870's. The following year on December 18, 1877 Augustus Bastien sold the south half of Lot 13 for $250 to Ellen Hunt the wife of William George Hunt, an Engineer. This is the property on which 229 George Street is located. According to assessments the Hunts resided on the property now known as 229 George Street until 1883. In 1884 Augustus Bastien is shown as the owner of the Hunt's property on the assessment, although no deed is ever registered from Ellen Hunt to Augustus Bastien. Likely, it is that the Hunts had defaulted on the mortgage that they had given to Augustus Bastien and he had repossessed the property.

By Deed dated May 6, 1886 Augustus Bastien sold the property on which 229 George Street is located to Hattie Primeau, the wife of Remi Primeau. Remi Primeau was the son of Francis F. Primeau, a Blacksmith who owned the property on the west side of George Street where 240 George Street is located today.

NOTES TO 229 GEORGE STREET BEING PART LOT 13, PART LOT 12 ON THE EAST SIDE OF GEORGE STREET

Hattie Mayhew had married Remi Primeau in 1886. Initially Remi Primeau was described as a Carpenter on Assessments. By 1896 Primeau had become a Butcher. In 1901 Remi Primeau and his brother Henry Primeau bought Lot 12 which was the vacant lot to the south of Lot 13 which seems to have been used in connection with the butcher business.[10] On September 29, 1902 Hattie Primeau and Remi Primeau sold Lot 12 and the south half of Lot 13 for $850 to Thomas Deslippe who was described as a Farmer of Malden Township on the Deed.[11] The increased value of the property could be attributed to the fact that this conveyance included Lot 12. Remi Primeau moved to Gore Street where he operated his butcher business known as The Palace Meat Market in a store attached to his house at 201 Gore Street.

Thomas Deslippe was about 30 years old when he bought 229 George Street. Five years earlier on October 12, 1897 he had married Hattie Bondy at St. John the Baptist Church. Thomas and Hattie Deslippe resided at 229 George Street until 1911 when the property was rented to Henry Boufford. Thomas Deslippe sold his property to Margaret Delmore on October 5, 1911.[12] Margaret Delmore was the wife of James Delmore. The assessments always note James Deslippe as the owner and occupant of the property. The Delmores remained the owners of the property for many years after 1913, the end period of the study.

The first record of him is his marriage in Amherstburg, ONT. His occupation was usually marine engineer & have some records verifying this. He probably came to Toledo in 1894 & was in Toledo CD in 1895 living with Thomas.

Edward's 1885 obit. calls William "chief engineer"

Notes

Orphaned by 1851- think her mother could have passed away but father still living.

15 Dec 1877 deed Ellen purchased 13 George St. from A. Bastien. On same date was recorded a mortgage between Wm. George & Ellen & A. Bastien. On17 Nov. 1880 another mortgage transaction was between Wm. G & Ellen and M. Tworney which indicate the later was the purchaser. Did he just supply the mortgage or did he get the property? Marsh Coll. may have the deeds. Think the streets may have been renumbered as George (2018) ends in the 200 block.

resign his position as chairman of the Board of Health, without resigning his office of Mayor, he would at once tender his resignation unless he had proper co-workers, but it could not be done." They had always run the Board of Health as economically as possible.

The Deputy Reeve said he was not opposed to Mr. Hunt, but he was opposed to placing too many duties on him. He could'nt see where it would pay a special constable to take a prisoner to Sandwich at 10 cents per mile. Other tenders had been received for the offices of engineer and janitor at lower salaries than Mr. Hunt, but Mr. Hunt had been selected as he could devote his whole time to the duties and always be at the hall, which he would not be, if appointed chief constable.

Mr. Green was of the opinion that the services of Chief of Police could be dispensed with, since it was the desire of the Council to be economical.

Moved, in amendment, by the Deputy Reeve and Mr. Green, that the blanks of the by-law be not filled in—do without a constable.

Amendment then put, and lost.

Mr Anderson thought Mr. Hunt was quick to catch on. He might be given the duties of Sanitary Inspector and if he could not perform them he would not accept them.

Mr. Florey said that a short time ago Mr. Anderson had said that we did not need a a Chief of Police.

Mr. Anderson—"You're wrong."

Mr. Florey—"Some one else is to be appointed. There is something in the wind."

The Mayor was of the opinion that Mr. Anderson was either the mover or a supporter of Kate running boarding house in 1900; son and mother liv. with her. Kate listed as widow.

Not sure about Maurice. Am sure marriage date is correct but not his birthdate.

The "Daniel" Hunt who died 13 Jan. 1889 in Kansas City MO is not a mistake for David. Daniel's obit shows his father is Michael and a res. of KC.

David must have died before 1906 as is not listed as survivor of his mother and probably d. before 1900 as Kate is listed as widow. There could have been a divorce or separation though.

BURMINGTON

Acreage: 752½.

Population: 1911, 142; 1921, 125; 1931, 101.

The small parish, 1½ miles in length from east to west and ¾ mile in breadth, is bounded on the south and west by the River Stour. The road from Shipston-on-Stour to Chipping Norton runs from north to south across the western end of the parish, and the village lies between this road and one from Willington.

The village is small and has a few buildings of some age with stone walls and stone-tiled roofs. One house just east of it on the north side of the roadway is dated 1730: it has red-brick walls with diaper patterning in black bricks in the upper story and rusticated stone quoins. The tall windows have wood casements and transoms and the front entrance has a curved hood. The roof is covered with stone tiles.

The old Manor House, south-west of the churchyard, appears to be of early-16th-century origin but has been considerably altered. The walls, of stone rubble with angle dressings, retain two or three of the original stone mullioned windows with labels. The old plan was a half-H shape with the wings projecting to the south: the flush north face of three practically equal bays overlooks the churchyard; each bay has a gable head: the easternmost has plastering, but some of it is missing and exposes ancient timber-framing: the other two gables are weather-boarded and project on moulded bressummers now plastered. The interior has also been much altered, but the ground floor ceiling of the middle bay of the house (now reduced on the south side for a modern staircase) retains most of its early-16th-century moulded beams to show it was originally divided into three compartments by two. The kitchen, in the west wing, also has a moulded beam and the ceiling was probably similar but has been more altered. This room had a very large fire-place (now reduced) with an oak lintel.

The east wing has three-light windows in the east and north walls; it is mainly used now as cellars, &c., but was of more importance formerly. There are later additions to the south.

Manor

In 1086 Robert de Stafford held 5 hides in BURMINGTON which had formerly been held by Godwin. (fn. 1) The overlordship descended in that family, one knight's fee here being recorded among the Stafford fees in 1212, (fn. 2) 1242, (fn. 3) and 1372, (fn. 4) and a half and a quarter of a half-fee in 1398 (fn. 5) and 1403. (fn. 6) In 1242 the fee was held by Adam de Greneville of Hawise de Wulleward, of Wolford (q.v.), who held of the Baron of Stafford. He was probably the successor of William de Greinville who was dealing with land in Burmington in 1232. (fn. 7) A later William de Grey(n)ville forfeited the manor for adhering to the king's rebels (under the Earl of Hereford) in 1322, (fn. 8) but it was regranted in July of that year to him and Lucy his wife and their issue, with contingent remainder to one John, son of Richard de Rodeneye. (fn. 9) At the same time William, with Richard de Rodeneye, who was keeper of the rebels' lands in Devon and Cornwall (fn. 10) and was probably surety for William, acknowledged a debt of £200 to the king. (fn. 11) William's wife Lucy seems to have survived him and been remarried to John de Wolverton before 1338, when they released their rights in the manor to John de Grenville. (fn. 12) The latter was living in 1346 (fn. 13) but seems to have died soon afterwards (fn. 14) and his estates passed to his daughter and heiress Alice, who married Sir Humphrey Stafford, (fn. 15) the representative of a junior branch of the overlord's family. He was holding the fee in right of his wife in 1372, (fn. 16) and his son Sir Humphrey held it in 1403. (fn. 17) The latter's son, also Sir Humphrey, acquired the estate of Hooke in Dorset and died in 1442. (fn. 18) He had three sons, of whom the eldest, Richard, predeceased him, leaving a daughter Amice, upon whom the manor of Burmington was settled in fee tail by the father's uncle John Stafford, Archbishop of Canterbury (1443–52), and other trustees. Amice died without issue and the manor passed to Humphrey Stafford (son of he^r uncle John). He died in 1461, holding the manor o^f Henry, Duke of Buckingham, and it passed to Humphrey, Lord Stafford of South wick (Wilts.), as son of his uncle William, (fn. 19) who had died in 1450. (fn. 20) Lord Stafford was created Earl of Devon in 1469 shortly before he rebelled against the king and was executed. (fn. 21) The manor went to Eleanor, wife of Thomas Strangways, eldest of the three daughters of his aunt Alice, (fn. 22) and their son Giles Strangways conveyed it in 1540 to Henry Annesley and Nicholas Tooley. (fn. 23) John Tooley died in 1606 seised of the manor, leaving a son Thomas, (fn. 24) who in 1617 conveyed it to Henry, Earl of Northampton, (fn. 25) in whose family it remained until 1801, when it was sold to the Rev. T. Lambert Snow, whose eldest daughter Mary Anne married John Staunton of Longbridge (fn. 26) , and in 1932 Lady Beecham, wife of Sir Thomas, bought it from the Staunton Trustees on the death of Miss C. S. Staunton. (fn. 27)

At the time of the Domesday Survey there was in Burmington a mill worth 10*s.* (fn. 28) A water-mill was conveyed with the manor in 1540 to Nicholas Tooley, (fn. 29) and John Tooley was seised of two water-mills there at his death in 1606. (fn. 30) The mill, on the Stour, is still of considerable importance.

Church

The parish church of ST. BARNABAS AND ST. NICHOLAS is a small building consisting of a chancel with a north vestry, nave with a south porch, and a north-west bell-turret.

There is a fair amount of medieval masonry in the church walls perhaps dating from as early as the 13th century, but the only ancient architectural detail surviving is part of the chancel arch of c. 1200. The church had fallen into decay and the nave was rebuilt in 1693; it formerly had a central tower, 16 ft. square, but this was then abolished and the chancel reduced in size. (fn. 31) A further very complete restoration was also carried out in the 19th century when all the windows, doorways, and roofs were renewed, the bell-turret added, and other work done.

The chancel (about 17 ft. by 13½ ft.) has an east window of two trefoiled lights and tracery of early13th-century character and two south trefoiled lancets. On the north side is a modern doorway to the vestry and near the east end a small niche. The east wall is of ancient coursed yellow masonry below the gable. The north wall is coated with cement outside, and the south wall is of modern masonry with some reused ancient stones. The modern roof is covered with stone tiles.

The responds of the chancel arch are of one chamfered order. The head is of two orders, the inner being carried on late-12th- or early-13th-century semi-octagonal corbel-capitals: the northern is carved with upright flowers with hollowed trumpet heads, and the southern with a kind of hollowed scallop ornament having between the scallops stalked flowers with keeled ball-heads like closed tulips. The moulded abaci are deeply undercut, especially the northern. The flowers die away below into common plain rounded ends of later recutting, perhaps replacing former shafts.

The nave (40 ft. by 16½ ft.) has four north windows: the third from the east (probably in place of a former doorway) is of two lancet lights and the others are single lights. In the south wall are a two-light window and two lancets, the pointed and chamfered doorway being between the two latter and covered by a small porch.

At the west end is a gallery and the wall has two lancets below the gallery and a two-light traceried window above.

East of the porch the south wall appears to have medieval masonry, except the two or three top courses, but west of it it is modern, as is also the west wall. The north wall is probably of 1693 except for the modern top courses.

The north-west turret contains the north entrance to the staircase leading to the gallery and is finished with a pyramidal stone roof.

The modern nave roof is covered with stone tiles.

The font, a plain one of flower-pot shape, is probably medieval work re-tooled and stands on a chamfered base.

The modern stone pulpit is entered through the wall, in the north-east corner, from the vestry.

The communion plate includes an Elizabethan cup with dotted line ornament, the cover converted for use as a paten; a second cup, probably of the time of Charles I; and two small patens of 1720. There is also a flagon of plated ware, and a pewter alms-dish dated 1764. (fn. 32)

The bell is of 1592, by Robert Newcombe of Leicester. (fn. 33)

The registers begin in 1583.

In the churchyard is the three-tiered base and a small fragment of the stem of an ancient cross.

Advowson

The church of Burmington was a chapel annexed to the church of Wolford and is so styled when the latter was appropriated to Merton College in 1311. (fn. 34) The rectory was confirmed to Merton in 1634 (fn. 35) and was said to be worth £30 yearly in 1638, when there were certain scandals about the corrupt sale of leases of college property by the Warden. (fn. 36) The benefice became first a perpetual curacy and then a vicarage during the 19th century, but has continued to be held with Wolford. (fn. 37)
